MORE SEATS FOR HOUSE?

A commission to revamp the province's electoral boundaries will be named before the end of the year.

Premier Dave Barrett said today suburban areas have had "fantastic growth" and require examination.

He said the study could result in an additional four or five seats in the present 55-seat legislature.

Barrett did not name specific areas where he thought there should be added representation, but he said there will have to be a change before the next election.

Mass Tel Walk-Out

Management personnel manned the switchboards today as close to 10,000 workers at B.C. Telephone Co. walked off the job across the province, including about 700 in Victoria.

Company spokesman Glyn Jones said in Victoria that local phone service will not be interrupted but there are delays in operator-dialed calls and only essential phone installations will be undertaken.

He urged phone users calling long-distance to direct dial wherever possible.

The labor dispute stems from suspension of a woman employee in Vancouver for refusing to train a staff member in her job without getting extra pay.

The walkout began on a small scale Monday when about 30 workers in the company's main office in Vancouver did not come to work to protest the suspension. It spread to Vancouver Island and the interior Tuesday but all workers were on the job Wednesday while company and union met on the issue.

The company proposed a federal mediator be asked to decide whether the dispute should be submitted to binding arbitration but the union insists the entire dispute be put to a mediator.

Earlier today no further talks had been scheduled but the company said it is considering legal action to end the walkout.

Robert Donnelly, president of the Federation of Telephone Workers of B.C., told the Times from Vancouver today there is only one job description in the company — group 6 — which includes job training and the woman suspended is in group 4.

A difference of about $6 a day in pay is involved, he said.

Jones said the suspended employee was not being asked to do job training but to give information about a job, in the same way one employee will familiarize another with his job so it can be done while he is on vacation, for example.

Donnelly said the company wanted binding arbitration because the worst that could happen is it would have to live up to the contract. The federation asked for a mediator in hopes he could bring a fresh approach to solving the differences.

Another company spokesman described the walkout as a "flagrant contravention" of the union-company agreement, which does not expire until the end of the year.

Free Passengers Urged on Ferries

Drastic changes in B.C. Ferry Authority's car-passenger service between Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland are recommended in an 80-page special study commissioned by the highways department.

They include a proposal for free passenger service, including public transit vehicles, and higher fares for automobiles to discourage travellers from taking vehicles across Georgia Strait.

The study was done by the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control and the University of B.C. Transportation Centre last August based on interviews with 42,291 travellers waiting at Tsawwassen, Swartz Bay, Horseshoe Bay and Departure Bay terminals during the summer peak.

Long lineups and lengthy waiting to get aboard ferries would be reduced, the report said, if more passengers and fewer cars, campers and motor homes used the ferries, provided there were better public transportation facilities.

The highways department is responsible for ferry terminal construction. The report was released in Vancouver and

LEWIS GETS OFFER HE COULD REFUSE

THUNDER BAY (CP) — A man with a wheelbarrow made David Lewis an offer he was quick to refuse Wednesday night.

"Hey, David," the man called as the New Democratic Party leader walked near a horse barn at the Canadian Lakehead Exhibition grounds, "here's some of the stuff you're spreading—we make it right here."

The wheelbarrow carried a load of hay garnished with a mound of fresh horse manure. Mr. Lewis grinned and walked away, replying: "I think you've got the wrong man."

Meanwhile, in Magog, Que., Tory leader Stanfield claimed that Canada is only months away from a recession and in Digby, N.S., Prime Minister Trudeau pledged that, if re-elected his government will re-establish an independent ministry of fisheries. Full reports, Page 13.

Teenage Thieves Stole-to-Order

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police have broken up a juvenile theft ring that specialized in stealing-to-order.

Youth squad detectives blamed the ring for at least 32 break-ins in a territory stretching from the University of British Columbia campus to West Vancouver.

Police said Wednesday the children were given shopping lists of specific goods to steal.

Police said at least 15 boys and two girls were involved in the ring, directed by 10 or more adults who fenced the stolen property.

The juveniles are between 12 and 16 years old and all from the middle-class Kitsilano area.

Detective Leon Bourque, who has been working on the case for more than two months, said the gang chose only expensive-looking homes to break into.

They knocked on the door of a house and if anyone answered, they would pretend to be selling raffle tickets or newspaper subscriptions.

If no one answered, they would smash in a front window through which they could open the door.

Once inside, they gathered up stereos, cameras, tape recorders and coin collections.

Bourque said occasionally they went on a rampage, smashing wine and pop bottles against walls, pouring milk on rugs, slicing up furniture and slashing paintings.

Police estimate the gang did at least $3,000 in damage and got away with $10,000 worth of valuables, $3,500 of which has been recovered.

Bill
For City?

By PAUL MOSS

Times Staff

Unless an early promise of help comes from the provincial government, Victoria taxpayers could be liable to meet bills totalling close to $500,000 for the care of welfare patients in private hospitals, city officials said today.

The warning comes in the wake of last week's ruling by the Supreme Court of Canada that the city of Victoria must pay $55,158 to Aberdeen private hospital, 1450 Hillside, for the city's share of increased payments up to May of 1972.

The city had appealed the claim not on principle but to contest the actual amount, city solicitor Jakob de Villiers said.

But now claims from two other Victoria hospitals — Glengarry and Glenwarren — that have been stalled pending the outcome of the long legal hassle have to be recognized. And that total involves another $367,471.

However, city manager Jim Bramley said there is no "great concern" over the matter, as Victoria is reasonably confident that the provincial government will acknowledge its responsibility to help meet the retroactive costs.

The argument dates back to the late 1960s which the former Social Credit government set a limit on municipal liability for payments to private hospitals and rest homes for the care of welfare patients.

Municipalities were sued, rather than the provincial government, because under a section of the Municipal Act every municipality with a population over a certain figure is required to make provision for its "poor and destitute," de Villiers said.

He said although the provincial government apparently assumed all responsibility for welfare services in September, 1973, that section still remains as an "anomaly" in the legislation so that the hospitals "are continuing to sue the city rather than the government."

The transportation study cost $25,000 and was done by students under direction of the U.B.C. centre and SPEC.

A spokesman for Strachan said he expected the minister to comment when he returns from a vacation in the interior.

Additional stress on B.C. highways and ferries is expected when the northern highway system is improved, said Loren Doll of the UBC centre.

At present, about one-third of the 230,000 vehicles using the main ferry run are from outside the province and more than half the total — including campers and trailers — carry fewer than three people.

About one-third of those who take their cars on ferries do so for convenience, it was found.

If there are new terminals built at Gabriola Island and in the Richmond area, there could be 100,000 more vehicles on the Malahat highway in July and August.

The premier said the government holding of B.C. Tel shares amounts to "around $10 million," up from $8 million reported last March 1.

Holding Doubled

Premier Barrett said Wednesday the provincial government has doubled its holding of British Columbia Telephone Co. stock in the last four months.

5 Nailed Into House

Holding Doubled

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five persons, including a 13-day-old baby, were nailed into their house Wednesday when workmen, acting for the owners, hammered sheets of plywood over the doors to force them out.

"What the law says I don't really know and I don't really care," said Gene Senger, director of D. M. R. Holdings, owners of Kharitonov.

"Laws are made to be broken. There's a time and place for everything. All I'm asking them to do is leave."

Terry Cook, his wife, Jill, and their two children, and another tenant, Lorne Finey, got out of the house by climbing from windows.

Both Cook and Finey said they were given 30 days notice last May and a note June 7 saying the house would be boarded up, but they said a court eviction had not been served and they would stay on until they got one.

"They were sharp," said Det. Bourque. "They knew what they were doing."

The adults involved are also from the Kitsilano area and range in age from 17 to 50. One is from Nanaimo. Charges have not yet been laid.

The young bandits took their loot to a pool hall in Kitsilano where they found willing buyers, but police said they first checked the value of their goods with department store prices.

Police estimate the gang did at least $3,000 in damage and got away with $10,000 worth of valuables, $3,500 of which has been recovered.

KIDNAPPED PILOT FREED

ADDIS ABABA (Reuter)

A Canadian helicopter pilot captured by the separatist Eritrean Liberation Front E.L.F. three months ago has been released and is in Sudan, a Canadian embassy spokesman said here today.

Donald Wederoff, 27, of Calgary, president of the CanWest Aviation Co., was released Wednesday night, apparently in the area of Kassala on the Sudanese-Ethiopian border and now is believed to be in Khartoum he said.

The E.L.F. is still holding one other Canadian and three Americans captured with Wederoff on March 6 when their helicopter landed in the Massawa area.

Even Benny Was Bilked

Times News Services

FORT WORTH — Jack Benny figured it was a good investment, so the entertainer with the tight-wad reputation chipped in $300,000.

In the show business world the word gets around fast. Tax write-offs and big dividends were the key lures.

"We believed the people, we saw the facilities and, when you look at the list, we were in good company," said Martin Bregman, a movie producer.

Bregman and Benny were among many widely-known personalities who invested in a reported $130-million oil-drilling swindle that may be the biggest of its kind.

Liza Minnelli came up with $231,000. Walter Matthau had $200,000 he wanted to grow. Singer Andy Williams poured in $538,000 and hoped for the best.

In all 2,000 persons pushed cash into the drilling venture during a nine-year period. The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission has prepared a criminal fraud case against the bankrupt Home-Stake Production Co. of Tulsa Okla.

"The facilities," says The Wall Street Journal, consisted of five oil wells drilled on a vegetable farm near Santa Marta, Calif., in the late 1960s.

The newspaper says one well was legitimate and 3,500 feet deep but at least three of the others were 500-foot dry holes.

The facilities also included irrigation pipes painted with the consent of the farmer to resemble oil pipelines. The Journal says.

It is believed the SEC will claim Home-Stake used investors' own money to pay quick dividends in order to attract subsequent, larger investments.

The scheme was successful enough to attract money from Bregman, Benny, Matthau, Williams, as well as Buddy Hackett, Barbara Streisand, Alan Alda, Jacqueline Bisset, Phillips Diller, Tony Curtis, Jonathan Winters and Bob Dylan.

The longer a person puts cash into the firm the less he gets back, although many investors did not question the reduced dividends because they were benefitting from huge tax write-offs.

The scheme was successful enough to attract money from Bregman, Benny, Matthau, Williams, as well as Buddy Hackett, Barbara Streisand, Alan Alda, Jacqueline Bisset, Phillips Diller, Tony Curtis, Jonathan Winters and Bob Dylan.

CAR CRASHES UP

Reportable motor accidents in B.C. during April rose 45 per cent and the cost of damage jumped 51 per cent, the Motor Vehicle Branch reported Wednesday.

"The continuing upward trend in reportable accidents during April is discouraging," said MV Branch superintendent Ray Hadfield, noting a pattern established earlier in the year.

Because of the cost of repairs there are more accidents above the $200 minimum damage for reporting accidents, he said. But there are also more severe accidents, borne out by a 32 per cent rise in fatalities and 17 per cent increase in injuries.

April statistics: Accidents 6,154 (4,237 a year ago). Fatalities 61 (46). Injuries 2,121 (1,811). Cost of damage $5.9 million. Total ($3.9 million). Total accidents January-April 22,694 (18,856). Injuries January-April 7,424 (7,136). Fatalities on highways 188 (170).</

Smiles, Flags Greet Nixon in Moscow

Times News Services

MOSCOW (UPI) — A smiling President Nixon flew in to a flag-waving, hand-pumping welcome from the Soviet big three today, then joined them in a mile-a-minute motorcade to the Kremlin for tough summitry on slowing the nuclear arms race.

They sped past an estimated 10,000 spectators, covering the 22 miles in 20 minutes.

After a brief reception, Nixon began his first private meeting with Communist Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev.

Presidential aides said the warm greeting was an indication of the extent of detente.

They said a more significant sampling of the mood would come later during toasts at a state dinner hosted by Brezhnev.

A U.S. official aboard the "Spirit of '76" jetliner during the three-hour flight from Brussels said Nixon had turned down the latest Soviet proposal on curtailing multiple warhead missiles and, therefore prospects for a full agreement during the weeklong visit were slim.

Even so, the beginning of Nixon's second visit to the Soviet Union in three years bore marked contrast to his previous arrival, in May, 1972, when Brezhnev stayed away from the airport reception.

This time all three leaders — Brezhnev, Premier Alexei Kosygin and President Nikolai Podgorny — were at the foot of the ramp when Nixon and his wife Pat emerged into the bright sunlight, smiling and waving.

So vital security police, meanwhile, arrested Wednesday another organizer of an international science seminar planned for next week in what appeared to be a move to silence all Jewish protests before Nixon's arrival.

STRIKE SNARLS MONTREAL

MONTREAL (CP) — Thousands of workers walked, pedalled bicycles, hitch-hiked or rode taxis to their jobs today when a strike tied up city and subway transportation.

Massive traffic snarls occurred on expressways in the city and bridges leading to the downtown core because of the thousands of extra cars being driven to workers' offices and plants.

Bus drivers, subway operators, taxi sellers and information agents with the Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission (MUCTC) did not appear for the morning shift after strike call was issued by the 3,200-member union Wednesday night.

The men were to meet in an east-end arena today, a union spokesman said.

Paul Forget, business agent for the men, said about 700 of the 3,200 met Wednesday night and voted to walk off the job in retaliation for a decision by the transit commission to withhold part of the salary of bus drivers, who refused Tuesday and Wednesday to cross-picket lines set up at two depots by striking subway-security guards.

Management personnel man the switchboard at B.C. Tel after operators walked off the job today

RAIN HAVOC IN EDMONTON

EDMONTON (CP) — Almost three inches of rain fell in Edmonton Wednesday, causing hundreds of flooded basements and leaving some streets under two inches of water as sewers backed up.

The rain began early in the day and 2.98 inches had fallen by early evening. Gradual clearing was predicted today.

Fire department officials blamed the heavy rain for blowing out a switchbox at a 12-store apartment building in centre city which caused a fire in underground circuits. No injuries were reported.

Ferry Report

pollution, warned Brian Campbell of SPEC.

A priority system of ferry space should be adopted for regular ferry users as one alternative to the problem, the report said.

It agreed with Strachan on introduction of a reservations system which the authority is having studied by another group.

B.C. Ferries lost $10 million last year — about the same as the Vancouver Island economy gained from ferry users. About $1.5 million came from tourists living out of the province.

Other recommendations include increasing the cost of ferries to foreign vehicles to help pay for extra service to tourists; introduction of a comprehensive public transportation study concentrating on Vancouver Island to discourage too frequent use of private cars; study of tourism in B.C., evaluating social, economic and environmental costs and benefits; educational campaigns to persuade people to use public transportation; more ferry runs during the summer but no further additions to the fleet.

Work Style Threatened

North Saanich municipality's whole method of work will be threatened if its six outside workers don't relax demands for new job classifications, Mayor Paul Grieve said today.

"If those job classifications are non-negotiable, then our method of work is really on the chopping block," Grieve said.

gives each outside worker a clearly defined job, such as laborer or truck driver.

In North Saanich, said Grieve, "we rely on the versatility of our crew to do a whole variety of work." A truck driver is expected to help put down blacktop and to do some laboring as well.

If the Saanich classifications were accepted, he said, a North Saanich employee working to rule could refuse to do anything but his designated job.

Grieve said that at an earlier meeting between the union and North Saanich council's

Beer Taps Flowing

WINNIPEG (CP) — Striking brewery workers at two Winnipeg plants have reached agreement on a new contract and are to begin returning to work immediately.

Officials said the company's failure has nothing to do with the permissive society.

Spokesmen for Labatt's Manitoba Breweries Ltd. and Kiewel-Pelisser's Breweries Ltd. said the workers were to return to work immediately but it would take one or two days to sort out timetables and other related matters.

The strike began June 2.

Premier Barrett plans a four-city tour of Ontario next week to campaign on behalf of New Democratic Party candidates in the July 8 federal election.

Airport

LONDON (UPI) — Nearly 1,000 troops backed by armor and a helicopter wrapped a ring of steel around London's major international airport today to counter a feared Arab guerrilla attack.

Troops in battle dress carrying automatic weapons mingled with thousands of passengers at the airport in what an officer said was the biggest military operation in Britain since the Second World War.

The government declined to spell out the reasons for the alert except that it was taken because of the "likelihood of terrorist activity" of which there is a constant general threat.

Airport sources said it was ordered on intelligence reports a Palestine guerrilla group, foiled by West German security at the World Soccer Cup championships, had turned their attention to London's Heathrow airport.

Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson this weekend plays host to 26 international Socialist leaders, including Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

The Daily Mail said the alert will remain in force until after the Socialist International meeting and departure of the leaders Sunday.

The unsourced report said a guerrilla commando squad planned a three-part attack, signalling it by opening indiscriminate fire in a crowded passenger building.

A similar attack by guerrillas of the Japanese "Red Army" killed 26 persons at Tel Aviv's Lod airport in 1972.

Israel Warns Beirut On Cairo Aid Offer

Times News Services

Israel's chief of staff warned Lebanon today a decision to accept an Egyptian offer of planes and anti-aircraft missiles could turn Lebanon into a battlefield.

Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur made the remark in reply to questions about Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's offer to use his airpower to help Lebanon deal with possible Israeli raids against Arab guerrilla bases in Lebanon.

"If they bring planes into Lebanon, if they bring anti-aircraft missiles into Lebanon, they might change Lebanon into a battlefield," Gur said in a press conference in Tel Aviv.

"If they bring some anti-aircraft missiles into Lebanon and they want to keep them, they have to bring in the whole system—SAM-2s, SAM-3s, SAM-6s," he said.

"I think that Lebanon will be in more danger if they open themselves up to this kind of thing."

Gur said the answer to the Lebanese dilemma is for the Beirut government to stop guerrilla infiltration into Israel itself.

"They can do it," Gur said. "In order to prevent a deterioration in the situation, they should do something now."

In Beirut, government sources said Lebanon would probably turn down an offer to station Egyptian planes on its territory but would accept Egyptian anti-aircraft missiles.

The sources said the government felt the Egyptian aircraft would drag Lebanon, the least militant of Israel's neighbors, too deeply into the Middle East conflict.

In a related development, Lebanon has decided to ask the Arab countries to reimpose oil production cuts if Israel continues to attack Palestinian positions in Lebanon in reprisal for guerrilla raids, says the right-wing Beirut newspaper Al Jarida.

The paper says Lebanese Premier Takieddin Solh will make the request at the emergency meeting of the Arab league defence council called in Cairo for Monday to discuss the Israeli raids into Lebanon.

The council is made up of defence and foreign ministers of the league's 21 member states.

Arab gunners and Israeli forces traded artillery fire across the Lebanese border on the western slopes of Mount Hermon today, the Israeli military command said.

A communiqué said several mortar shells were fired from Lebanese territory at the Har Dov sector. Fire was returned and no Israeli casualties were reported, the command said.

Pointless Political Issue

In the midst of an election the last thing the federal government needs is two James Cross kidnappers to turn up in Paris. Even worse, Justice Minister Otto Lang said the government would attempt to extradite the men, only to be contradicted by Prime Minister Trudeau who said he did not think the Canadian people wanted them back. Enter Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, who seizes on the government's crossed signals, saying the prime minister owes the Canadian people an explanation as to why the two kidnappers should not be brought back for trial.

There are subtle nuances here reaching back to the War Measures Act, FLQ terrorism, and the whole issue of separatism — delicate questions in the middle of a federal election. If the Trudeau administration shrugs off the extradition issue, the implication for some English-speaking Canadians will be that the government does not want to offend Quebec. Nothing could be further from the truth. Persons who would take that attitude should remember the ferocity with which the government conducted its investigation into the Cross kidnapping in October 1971 — a ferocity which resulted in the temporary suspension of civil liberties for all Canadians.

The answer to Mr. Stanfield's query of why the kidnappers cannot be brought back to trial is simply that the French will not give them back. Even if Canada were to request extradition French officials say it would be denied since France does not give up persons wanted for politically connected crimes. Nor should the French attitude be interpreted in the same framework as de Gaulle's infamous "vive Quebec Libre." Canada did not give up American draft dodgers who were wanted in their own country.

The basic question is whether or not the Cross kidnapping was a political crime. The French think so; Canada treats the incident as a common crime. But it would be silly to argue with the French over semantics when their mind appears to be made up.

To make a political issue of a sordid chapter in Canadian history involving a handful of terrorists is pointless, especially when it is legally impossible to do anything except make a fruitless gesture.

Ebb Tide

A casual drive around the local waterfront readily shows the great growth in marina facilities that has occurred during the past few years and is still proceeding. In a part of the planet so richly endowed with priceless boating and fishing resources, the increasing popularity of pleasure craft of all kinds is understandable. But with yachts, power boats and other types must inevitably come places in which to keep them.

The concentration of marina establishments in the area between Sidney and Swartz Bay is most impressive, and boatmen are fortuinate that nature has provided even the limited number of bays and coves that are available. But where does it end? Can the entire shoreline in days to come be devoted to mooring and jetty accommodation, so that boat storage will in time match the proliferating automobile parking areas which now are so sorry a feature of the land?

There is hope of survival ashore in that car parks could eventually all be placed underground. But boats can find no haven ten feet under the surface.

The problem assumes emphasis in view of the decision at Sidney this week to reject a marina proposal which would have catered for 500 craft and extended some three-quarters of a mile along the harbor shore. Another still larger project in the same region is running into stiff opposition.

Clearly there will have to be a halt at some point, and that point should be somewhere short of complete monopolization of every available seafront. The landlubbers have rights too, and the boatmen may find it necessary to go much farther afield to find accommodation for their recreation. A pity if it comes inevitably to that, for there is no finer, more healthful pastime.

Something To Be Preserved

The Malahat Building on Wharf Street, near the foot of Broughton is one of the architectural jewels of Victoria. Viewed from the landward side or from across the harbor, the little red brick structure exhibits such pleasing color, shape and proportions that the wisdom of preserving it becomes more evident every day.

As accommodation for the Maritime Museum — if the latter were forced to move from its present location on Bastion Square — the Malahat building would find an appropriate tenant and a nicely conforming waterfront use. The catch is that, according to Maritime Museum officials, the building, while ideal in many respects, would place a serious limit on the display of museum treasures, being much less in floor area than the old court house now used.

If this view proves correct, a second problem arises. Further construction to expand the premises might later be called for. If any work is to be done as an extension to Malahat or in the near vicinity, there must be every guarantee that the little building itself will not be infringed or altered so as to detract from its present appearance. If such a guarantee cannot be given, then it will be better to abandon the proposed museum exchange and ensure that the Malahat is employed for a purpose within its capacity.

There is, of course, a unique exception to this generalization of the meaning and substance of leadership: namely, the greatest of all leaders, Sir Winston Churchill; but, then, his countrymen were fighting for country and freedom, during Britain's "finest hours." — E.J. ## LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Leadership

In a recently reported statement, our P.M. summed up the various and complex issues of this election campaign in a single word, e.g. "leadership". He didn't elaborate.

In an age of almost instant communication, exposure to cameras and microphones, hordes of interviewers and reporters, speech writers and advisory staff, we wonder whether and to what extent the leader's image is thoroughly "genuine" e.g. whether or not the man we see and hear is himself or the product of the so-called media.

In the past, when all the forces above mentioned were limited or non-existent, we could have an almost clear-cut opinion of a leader. Regardless of all efforts of image-makers, a true leader is still measured according to certain basic values such as sterling integrity and ability to know his people, not to manipulate them and conquer their support simply by oratorical skill. Some of the past great leaders were men of few words: Benjamin Disraeli (Great Britain), Franklin Delano Roosevelt (USA) and our very own Lester B. Pearson. Some "dramatic" so-called leaders (Hitler, Mussolini) brought their respective countries down to disaster. Gestures, invectives, emotional appeals often are just means to conceal the emptiness and superficiality of thoughts too deep to be expressed by a flurry of eloquence.

There is, of course, a unique exception to this generalization of the meaning and substance of leadership: namely, the greatest of all leaders, Sir Winston Churchill; but, then, his countrymen were fighting for country and freedom, during Britain's "finest hours." — E.J. Lattes, No. 503 — 548 Dallas Rd.

Reunion

Linwood School in the community of St. James-Assiniboia, Winnipeg, Manitoba, is celebrating its 60th anniversary this year. Celebrations will be held over two days, Friday and Saturday, October 18 and 19 at the school. Invitations are being extended to the events of both days to all former St. James School and Linwood School pupils, together with those who attended St. James High School and Collegiate in the earlier four-room wooden building and later in the red-brick building built in 1914. Linwood School has housed both elementary and high school students. In short, all those who attended school on the Linwood School grounds, which would include those housed in a tent in 1912, are urged to attend.

A mailing list is being compiled of former staff and students, and names and address are being sought, together with pictures and other memorabilia. They would be welcomed by:

The 60th Anniversary Committee

Winnipeg, Manitoba R3J 2C6

In order to verify the War Service Honor Rolls, names of former staff and students who served in the two World Wars are requested.

All present signs indicate that this historic event will be exciting and well attended, and all those working on the arrangements are tremendously encouraged by the response. Do let us hear from you and join us if you can! Constance Waters, Publicity Chairman, 60th Anniversary Committee.

Principles

Your readers may be interested in this excerpt from the address of Latham C. Burns to the Investment Dealers Association of Canada here in Victoria on June 11:

On July 8 we all troop once again to the polls to elect a new federal government. Back in 1863, 111 years ago, Abraham Lincoln was running for President of the United States as the Republican candidate. He made a campaign speech at that time, which included the following philosophy:

"You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift."

You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong.

You cannot help the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer.

You cannot help the poor by destroying the rich.

You cannot build character and courage by taking away a man's initiative and independence.

And you cannot help men permanently by doing for them, what they could do for themselves."

I commend these simple statements. America prospered for generations as no other country in history by adhering to these principals.

I suggest that Canadians should ask all candidates where they stand with respect to the free enterprise system. Millions of Canadians have a real stake in the answer — not just professionals in the securities industry but all those with pensions, life insurance, trust funds, etc. (End Excerpt) — Robert C. Vickery, 650-1070 Douglas St.

Personal Action

An important factor of the present federal election campaign is the unusually high percentage of voters that is in the "Undecided" column. Some people blame the press and other media for the lack-luster nature of the campaign in an election that is just over two weeks away. I think it reflects the circumstances that are responsible for this extensive indecision.

I was in the undecided column myself for some time. This led to exchange of ideas in which I was often referred to as "belonging to the Liberal party." I never did belong to the Liberal party as a slave to it. I adopted the Liberal party as best suited to the promotions of my political ideals. That has ceased to be, as far as the federal branch of the party is concerned. I resigned from a lifetime appointment in December 1968, and there has been an accumulation of circumstances I did not agree with, since that time.

I can best sum these up by saying that I have resolved that it is time for a change. And that brings responsibility for personal action. Some of my friends had decided not to vote at all. That would be shameful, and should be discouraged.

My political ideals dictate that I must adopt a new party. We have too many parties now and it would be foolhardy to start another new one. So I have settled my indecision by pledging my vote and support to the only other free enterprise party that has a chance — the P.C. I believe a term of Stanfield administration will accomplish a house-cleaning that is sorely needed. After that I will be free to continue adopting a party that will best suit my political ideals. — Sydney J. Smith, 243 Oak Bay Manor.

Provincial Record

Before the Victoria area voter considers voting for the two Conservative candidates, thus risking a Stanfield government, they should examine Mr. Stanfield's record as premier of Nova Scotia. I don't think it will prove good enough for British Columbians.

After 12 years as premier, Mr. Stanfield still had not removed that most iniquitous of taxes, a poll tax on non-property owners. This tax always hits hardest at those least able to pay. Not only that, but a jail term was a possible penalty for non-payment, and this actually occurred while I was living in Nova Scotia. Naturally the Liberal government in Nova Scotia abolished this unfair taxation.

As well as this discriminatory tax, other instances of discrimination abounded. One example was the difference in the minimum wage law, with a lower minimum wage for women. Women in Nova Scotia were astonished to learn that the minimum wage in B.C. was the same for both men and women.

The utter and abject poverty in which most of the black population of Nova Scotia existed was a national disgrace. The Conservative minister of welfare made his first visit to one of these settlements, 10 miles from Halifax, approximately five years ago. He was shocked, he said, but why hadn't he looked at the situation sooner?

The taxpayers of Canada are still paying for the lack of judgment shown by the Stanfield government in the fiasco of the heavy water plant at Glace Bay. So far, seven years after the official opening, not an ounce of heavy water has been produced.

Another loss to the tax rolls was the Clairton Corporation. This thriving Ontario company was lured to Mr. Stanfield's home town of Truro with government grants. There, bad management and lack of a skilled labor force caused it to become bankrupt. Why were there no adequate technical and vocational training facilities in Nova Scotia, when generous federal grants for the purpose had been available for years? Educational priorities were certainly not at the top of the list in Stanfield's government.

New industries establishing in Nova Scotia were not subject to even minimum pollution controls. Thus Scott-Marijuana's paper mill was allowed to pollute a lobster fishing area.

Think carefully before you allow the man who created this kind of record as premier of Nova Scotia to govern Canada. — J. E. Murphy, 3011 Devon Rd.

Takes Issue

As a regular attendant at the Legislature when it is in session I must take issue with your editorial, "Snuffing Out NDP Style."

Although you criticize the government you do not offer a solution. I have sat in the gallery and listened hour after hour to repetitive debate, especially from the Socreds members. In the good old days of W. A. C. Bennett legislation was passed by exhaustion while the premier slept on a couch in his office. Is this your solution to the problem?

Many critics say that the government has lost control of the Legislature but these same critics do not offer any solution to the problem. Attempts have been made by the government to reach an agreement with the opposition party but without success. It takes two to reach an agreement and the only apparent solution of the Opposition, especially the Socreds, is to delay the process of government. Surely this is not a facet of democracy.

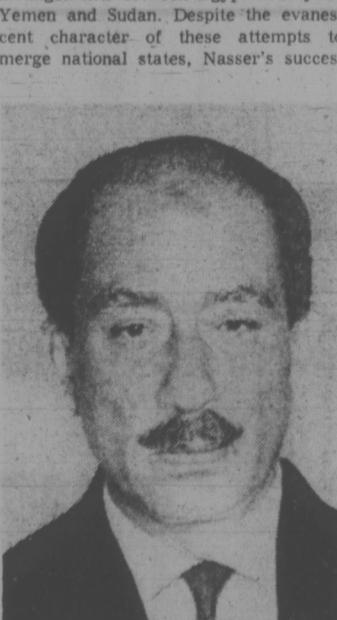

I believe that if the writer of the editorial had sat in the gallery hour after hour listening to Don Phillips, Mrs. Jordan, Chabot and Ed Smith amongst others, he would not have criticized the government. In addition I repeat that no solution was offered in the editorial. — M. P. B. Wixson, 1701 Cedar Hill Cross Road.

60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of June 27, 1914

CHICAGO — The teaching of sex hygiene in Sunday schools was approved today in the report to a convention of international Sunday schools associations by C. K. Moir, superintendent of the purity department. "Sex knowledge will be taught," said Mr. Moir, "if not in the home and Sunday school, in the street. Silence is criminal. We cannot remain inactive. We must teach these facts, and teach them so that knowledge may lead to purity and righteousness." Too much sexual knowledge is acquired by youngsters in the streets, and much of the proffered information is ugly, filthy and wrong, according to Mr. Moir.

ANWAR EL-SADAT

sor, Anwar el-Sadat, initially continued this approach.

In 1971 he told me he was "pleased" with the way Egyptian federation with Libya and Syria was working out and that he hoped Sudan would join the club (although the Southern Sudan is not really Arab).

Now Sadat, saddened by experience, indicates he has abandoned the federative approach. He told me in Cairo, April 21 "the victory of Arab unity during the war which has already underscored dramatic shifts in U.S. policy, brings America for the first time to actual realization that the flickering idea of Arab unity is of inescapable importance to the United States.

What will now have to be demonstrated is whether the friendship sealed by the Presidential journey can truly be achieved without sacrificing traditional American links to Israel; also whether, as a result of the new diplomatic balance, real peace can be achieved in the blood-soaked Palestine region.

The dream of unity is an immense force among the Arabs but has long been marred by quarrels and bickering. Its vision, nevertheless, was well-stated by Michel Aflaq of the Syrian Baath party as "a tendency toward universalism. People of the same race, the same language, the same religion, the same culture, the same history, the same past and the same problems want to unite and strive toward a better future."

Inherent Paradoxes

But inherent paradoxes lie like reefs hidden beneath the surface of these words. Aflaq, although talking of "the same religion" for the Arabs (meaning Islam) is himself a Christian. The "same history" and "the same past" are certainly not shared by Egypt (five millennia old at the time of the Arab conquest), Morocco, Jordan (a geopolitical invention by map-makers) and Lebanon.

Indeed, Lebanon, tiny descendant of ancient Phoenicia, displays in microcosm almost every Arab unity problem. Its population contains many religions including Maronite and Greek Orthodox Christians, Sunni and Shia Moslems and the heretical Druse. Its race and past are unique. What it shares with other Arab areas is a feverish sense of conspiracy.

The nationalism awakened by Napoleon's invasion of Egypt in 1797 was resuscitated in the 18th century by Jamal ud-Din Afghani who advocated the dream of unity still floats above seasonal sandstorms that often obscure almost everything else. Whether it will again materialize is hard to forecast — above all if another dream takes practical shape: peace between Israel and the Arabs. For it is their war which has inspired the only tangible moves toward unification in recent years. If U.S. diplomatic intervention produces peace, the dream of unity may assume another form.

The New York Times News Service

Put Them All on TV and Shorten the Campaign

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — If you thought the Conservative plaint over the short-changing of Bob Stanfield on the CBC television news was minor or petty, then you have missed the overriding priority which television news has in our politics.

A number of analysts, particularly in the United States, have examined the phenomenon of what has been called "the pseudo event" or "news theatre." One sees the phenomenon in the crassest and most dangerous of such cruelly-manufactured scenes as the assassination of the Israelis at the Munich Olympics or in the manipulation of radio stations in Montreal by the FLQ cells involved in the kidnappings of October, 1970.

Recently in the New York Times, Robert Brustein wrote:

"Anybody engaged in public activities tends to become an actor of sorts; merely to speak before an audience is to become something of a histrionic figure, self-consciously involved with posture, gesture, delivery."

TV accentuates and distorts the actors much more than any other media. In the highway along which words and images of United States, we have a national electronic public figures move and are witnessed: This is not to say that Ottawa is more a national focus of news in Canada than Washington is in the United States. They seem comparable. But in our television (overwhelmingly), and in our radio and daily press (strongly), federal politics and its personalities have a priority and an edge in time or space over almost any other kind of news. And the late-night TV news is much more a national institution than it is in the U.S.

The television witness in Canada is extremely high. No other medium, or any on tremely high. No other medium, or any one reaching consistently the numbers of Canadians which watch the national news on CBC and CTV network stations. The Toronto Globe and Mail purports to be our "national newspaper." One need not be nasty about the Globe's claim to appreciate that it reaches daily just a smidgen, perhaps a 25th, of the numbers caught by CBC-CTV TV news.

Politicians, their aides and supporters all pay inordinate attention to TV news coverage of their work in election campaigns because they believe absolutely that this is the chief means through which 10 million or more of the potential 13 million voters form their opinions on who is going well and who isn't.

It seems to me, particularly after watching successively the anomalous role-filling of Norman DePoe and Ron Collister as the number one Ottawa news commentators of the CBC, that the pressures on national TV reporters are far stronger than on any reporters or columnists from the other media. The lead man for CTV in Ottawa, Bruce Phillips, has a similar kind of priority with the federal politicians. However, he and his fellows in the private network haven't the same need to respond to the biases of the politicians. The CBC falls under the proprietorship of being the publicly-owned and financed corporation which reports to Parliament.

The campaigning stress on the federal party leaders to the eclipse of all other major politicians began before John Diefenbaker. It accelerated with him and gathered more speed with Pierre Trudeau and his happenings of 1968.

Given the fantastically high penetration which TV has in Canada, in terms of distribution system and in viewers' habits, the oddity — I would say the stupidity — of the federal election campaigns is that we do not capitalize on it.

Through TV programming we could match up the leaders (and their senior, supporting spokesmen such as John Turner or Jim Gillies) in a series of examinations for discovery by the public. We could match them in prime time in many ways: In direct debates, panel shows, all four together, one leader on one leader, individual "stand-up" performances, each leader chatting with an informed neutral, etc. We could have one night on the economy, another on national autonomy, another on civil rights, another on federal-provincial relationships, etc.

Never would so many Canadians get such a good chance to judge their leaders and their programs — in such a short space of time. Although the savings in money would be considerable, that would not be the prime benefit. This, in my opinion, would be the fair and equal way in which more of us could make a genuine choice based on immediate comparison.

Why don't we do this? Why do we carry on with this phoney romping over the country, with advance men, manufactured and processed incidents, all designed primarily to get a good slice of the leader on to the national TV news and demonstrating that he cares about all parts of the country and that the people in these parts care for him.

In rebuttal, political insiders will argue that the seven-week treks of the leaders is a testing ground for stamina, stability and a diversity of demanding situations — from mainstreaming to platform speeches to "not-line" performances. They say that without these much-watched perambulations we'd have no evidence of the basic strength of the parties in each locale; that there'd be no stimulation for the individual candidates and ridings; that it takes many weeks in Canada simply to organize an election and to get known the names and attributes of hundreds of constituency candidates.

Such a rebuttal isn't hogwash. The facts seem to me to be, however, that we could execute a thorough campaign in four weeks from the call to the vote if the politicians jointly wanted it. Further, all of us could see through well-staged prime-time electoral programs, compressed into one week or 10 days at the most, much more of the essence of leaders, parties and policies than we get with the pseudo-events of the leadership trail.

There's an easy explanation why the CBC national TV news got out of whack in favor of Trudeau over the two-week span which the Tories have complained about. The PM and wife Margaret (who, as she reminds us, is also a mother) and the so-called or alleged policy statements he has been making — on housing, transportation, welfare, etc. — seemed to provide the CBC news editors with more solid stuff to snippet into their newscasts than Bob Stanfield was providing daily for his attendant CBC cameras and crew. Of course the Trudeau-stuff, like the Stanfield and Lewis capers, is plotted and manufactured for just the purpose of catching the TV news. This time the Liberals are doing it much better.

BRITAIN'S GREAT LEVELLER?

Inflation Threatens Middle Class

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

LONDON — The British middle class has been fair game for social critics through this century. Shaw mocked its morality; others have pronounced it smug, Philistine, parochial.

But a good many of the qualities admired in this country are products of middle class tradition: honesty, fairness, resilience, the nonpolitical dedication of civil servants and teachers and other professions, the habit of courtesy. At its best, the middle class belonged to E. M. Forster's aristocracy of the considerate and the plucky.

One strong impression in Britain now is of a middle class that feels itself threatened. Generalities are risky, because the term "middle class" is social as well as economic. It take in people with incomes of $7,500 a year and $75,000. But a great many of them — doctors and business men, nurses and architects — plainly believe that their standards of life are at risk.

Inflation is now running at an annual rate approaching 20 per cent in this country. Tax changes made by the new Labor government bite everyone with an income over about $6,500 a year, taking more at higher levels. As a result, people can sense that their real income — their standard of life — is being cut.

LEVER

In theory, of course, the middle class person can increase his money income to keep up with inflation. In fact, it is difficult.

Even if you did find ways to earn more, you find yourself in a higher tax bracket! A family making $25,000 a year would have to increase its income nearly twice as fast as the rate of inflation to keep its real buying power steady. The Economist observed recently that if 18 per cent inflation continues, prices will double in four years and a $25,000-a-year man would need $100,000 "to stand still. He won't get it."

It is harder for the professional person or civil servant to accept what inflation and taxation are doing to him or her because, in their view, the same thing is not happening to the coal miner or the automobile worker. The powerful unions have broken all attempts at wage restraint, and are demanding and getting increases higher than the price trends.

That people should feel threatened in such a situation is not surprising. Harold Lever, a member of the Labor cabinet who happens to be well-to-do, comments:

"In Britain a higher proportion of the middle class than anywhere else has felt that the workers should get more. It sounds rather a faintly position! But that has meant giving the less privileged the lion's share of new national wealth, of growth, not taking away what the middle class already has. It is a hard thing to ask any group to contemplate an endless process of decline not only in relative status but in the actual standard of life. People do not want to look ahead, and say, 'Next year we won't be able to go to the theatre, or take our holiday in Greece'."

Post-war Britain has had remarkable achievements in assuring minimum standards for all her citizens. The welfare system and the National Health Service have greatly reduced the worst cruelties of income inequality, and public spending on transportation, arts and other amenities has improved life for all.

But the process that appears to be under way now is quite different from that improving of minimum standards. It is, rather, a process of levelling. More for the miners means less for someone else. Different middle class groups have begun to fear that they will be the unfortunate someone else, indefinitely.

"If it goes on like this," one thoughtful Labor voter remarked, "we shall have the most egalitarian society in the Western world." He paused, then added, "For good or ill."

Some Britons would say that the change, if it goes on, will be a good thing. The middle class has had its day, they argue, and now has proved too tired and too stodgy to lead the country out of its endless economic troubles. As it took over from the gentry and the industrial grandees at the end of the last century, it now must hand over effective power to the working class.

Those who disagree — and they are not only on the political right — doubt that society will be better off if its professionals and its managers expect to get poorer every year. It is also dangerous politically to destroy the middle class, they argue; that was done in Weimar Germany. It is especially foolish, they continue, when no one suggests a workable alternative formula for organizing society. The unions seem to offer only a free-for-all, with no restraints on their power.

The issues are not presented so starkly, but they are there. Social malaise is setting in beside the economic troubles. The old institutions are stumbling, and as people lose confidence in them they become even less effective. Socially, economically, politically there are questions for Britain that will not wait.

THE GREAT OIL SHAKEDOWN

THE PROGRESSIVE

companies continue to be too careful not to give consumers for every last dime can be read in the incredible 1974 first-quarter earnings of the major oil companies.

Exxon's profits were $705 million, up thirty-nine per cent over the same period a year ago. The profits of some of the others were: Texaco, $589 million, up 123 per cent; Standard of California, $293 million, up ninety-two per cent; Gulf, $290 million, up seventy-six per cent; Mobil, $259 million, up sixty-six per cent; Standard of Indiana, $219 million, up eighty-one per cent; Shell, $122 million, up sixty-nine per cent; Occidental, $68 million, up 718 per cent. And so on.

As The New York Times noted editorially, "If the oil

the 'energy crisis' by Mobil Oil, claimed in a national television ad that drilling is risky because only one oil well in sixty pays off. But the industry's own American Petroleum Institute reports that of all new wells drilled worldwide last year, three of every five was productive.

If ever a major American industry invited nationalization, Big Oil has. Until that happy goal can be achieved, the oil depletion allowance ought to be wiped out and a genuine oil windfall tax should be enacted to recover a major share of the profits plundered from the public. If the oil companies' massive profiteering has not aroused the American people to demand corrective action by the Congress, we are a nation of suckers. And perhaps we are.

N.B. Only Place To Buy Bricklin

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadians will get their chance to own the new Bricklin sports car, but they will have to place their orders with dealers in New Brunswick.

Malcolm Bricklin, the self-made millionaire who initiated the project, said Wednesday that the Bricklin will be available to Canadians sometime in the fall through dealers, yet to be named, in the province where the car will be mass-produced.

The New Brunswick and federal governments have invested $8 million in Bricklin Canada Ltd., mainly through guarantees for loans.

The two-seat sports car with special safety features will be produced at Saint John, N.B., primarily for export to the United States.

All indications have been that it will be sold only through 200 dealers in a dozen northeastern states.

But there has been some criticism that Canadians were building a car for Americans only, and using Canadian tax money to do it.

NOT YET READY

But New Brunswick Premier Richard Hatfield, who has staked his reputation and possibly his political career on the venture, said the work force at the Saint John assembly plant still is in the process of training to handle mass production.

Initially, plans call for production of 1,000 cars a month.

"I'm convinced, and I know Malcolm Bricklin is, that they can produce that amount," Hatfield said.

"Every industry we've ever had come to the province have had all kinds of startup problems. I think we'll have startup problems with this project as well."

"But the fact of the matter is that now the market is there. And that's terribly important in a new investment. The market will demand that we solve those problems."

Bricklin himself has announced that the cars will start rolling off the assembly line in late July and U.S. dealers will have their cars early in August.

By the end of September, there will be a minimum of 1,000 cars produced a month, he said.

COST IDENTICAL

The cars will be available to New Brunswick dealers at the same retail price—$6,495—announced Tuesday in New York, plus whatever taxes Canadians pay on new cars.

But if a Canadian living in Toronto, Montreal or Vancouver wants to buy a Bricklin he will have to do it through a New Brunswick dealer.

"From the indications we've gotten, it's going to be very difficult to get cars in the first couple of years," Bricklin said.

Bricklin Canada is 51-percent owned by the New Brunswick government. The parent company, General Vehicle Inc., based in Phoenix, Ariz., owns 49 per cent.

Bricklin is president of General Vehicle. The new car is his brainchild and he is touting it as the safest and most advanced production vehicle ever built.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The staff of the Senate Watergate committee says it has evidence that Senator Hubert Humphrey's former campaign manager helped engineer a scheme to funnel $137,000 in illegal corporate aid to Democrats, including Humphrey.

The campaign manager, Minneapolis lawyer Jack Chestnut, refused to testify under oath about the affair on grounds he might tend to incriminate himself, the staff said in a confidential report.

A former top campaign aide to Representative Wilbur Mills, Joe Johnson, also invoked the Fifth Amendment and refused to testify about apparently illegal aid to Mills's brief 1972 presidential campaign, the report said.

It said Humphrey's 1972 presidential campaign got $25,000 in apparently illegal corporate aid from the largest United States dairy co-operative, Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI). The $25,000 was part of a total of $137,000 in illegal contributions from AMPI, the report said.

AIDED BY CO-OPS

And, in separate donations, the report said, Mills's presidential effort got $75,000 in corporate aid from the milk producers and another $15,000 in corporate aid from a sister dairy co-op, Mid-America Dairymen Inc.

A spokesman for Humphrey said he had not seen the report, and "he won't want to comment on it until it is in its final form."

Mills could not be reached for comment.

The report said that both Humphrey and Mills have been asked to submit to interviews with one of the committee's members, but that neither complied with the request.

The report, a copy of which was obtained by The Associated Press, was circulated to members of the committee Wednesday, but hasn't been adopted by the committee.

One section of the two-volume report focuses on Chestnut's role in the payment of $137,000 to a Minneapolis computer-mail firm for lists of potential Democratic voters used by Humphrey and other Democrats in 1972.

EVIDENCE NOT CITED

The report cited no evidence that Humphrey or the others who benefited from the arrangement were aware themselves that corporate money was paying for the lists, which were compiled by Humphrey and other Democrats, including Humphrey.

But it said $25,000 of the total went for Humphrey's presidential campaign, and said "there is evidence that Senator Humphrey's campaign manager was aware of and promoted this illegal payment."

Chestnut did legal work for the computer-mail firm, and also had been employed secretly for eight months in 1970 by the milk producers, who paid him $625 a month through another lawyer, the report said.

In the Mills campaign, the congressman himself was personally involved in one of the incidents cited by the report.

It said Mills personally solicited an invitation to speak at a farm rally in Ames, Iowa, Oct. 2, 1971. The affair was hosted by David Parr, a co-op official, testified that the dairy co-op took over its financing and promotion in order to tout Mills for president. About $45,000 in corporate money was poured into the affair, which drew more than 7,000 persons, many wearing "Draft-Mills" lapel

FAILURE

PANIC CAUSE

BONN (Reuter) — The collapse of one of West Germany's biggest private banks has given rise to fears that other banking institutes in the country may have run into

Bankhaus Herstatt KG of Cologne was officially ordered to stop business transactions Wednesday and turn in its banking licence because it had run up heavy losses in foreign exchange deals.

The move, ordered by the federal supervisory office for the banking industry and announced by the central bank, prompted speculation that Herstatt was not the only bank in trouble over foreign exchange transactions.

The central bank announcement said Herstatt's losses—unofficially estimated to total at least 200 million marks (about $82.5 million)—were caused by forward exchange deals, a form of currency

Dealers on the West German foreign exchange in Frankfurt said smaller profit margins in conventional transactions had caused many banks to venture into risky

foreign-exchange operations,

some of them without the nec-

serves.

Herstatt, founded 19 years ago, was ordered to wind up business the day after the central bank announced new

of forward-exchange operations. These are due to take effect next Tuesday.

Kidnap Victim Hunted

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Mexican troops fanned out in the rugged Sierra Madre mountains today in an attempt to track down Marxist guerrilla leader Lucio Cabanas and rescue kidnapped Senator Ruben Figueroa.

The government Wednesday night flatly rejected the guerrilla's demands for $4 million ransom and the release of all prisoners jailed in the Mexican state of Guerrero.

Attorney General Pedro Ojeda Paullada said President Luis Echeverria ordered the army to try to save Figueroa and catch Lucio Cabanas.

He called Cabanas' demands "absurd" and said accepting them "would be to abandon the rule of law that exists in our country."

Cabanas, Mexico's best known guerrilla who heads the Poor People's Party, has for a decade played hide-and-seek with Mexican troops in the rugged mountains between Mexico City and Acapulco.

Figueroa, a 74-year-old senator and the governing party's candidate for Guerrero state governor in coming election, was taken prisoner May 30 by Cabanas after he voluntarily entered the mountains for private talks.

He said he was going to offer Cabanas amnesty for his long record of robberies, kidnappings and ambushes of Mexican army convoys in the Sierra Madre.

Salmon Endangered, Says Davis

VANCOUVER (CP) — Environment Minister Jack Davis said Wednesday Canada wants salmon declared an endangered species and plans to seek control over all Canadian-spawned salmon.

Davis said Canada would present its jurisdictional claim on the salmon at the law of the sea conference in Caracas, Venezuela, when he speaks for Canada on July 3.

Davis told a press conference he will seek to have Canadian salmon declared an endangered species "as they are on the Atlantic coast."

"We will present salmon as a unique case," he said. "Only a half-dozen of the world's nations have salmon in their waters."

"They travel far beyond the 200-mile economic zone Canada and other countries seek as boundaries for commercial fishing, undoes mineral exploration and pollution control."

"We seek a treaty whereby only the country of origin would be entitled to take salmon," the minister said.

"Salmon on Canada's Atlantic coast are down to one or two per cent of west coast salmon runs, partly because the Danes are wiping them out on the high seas," Davis said.

He said coastal British Columbia is the only part of the world where salmon have been protected by special conservation programs.

Canada's commercial fishing and government interests spend about $50 million annually on salmon, and the annual commercial income is $200 million, Davis said.

"With protection of our salmon in international waters, the salmon industry in Canada could yield another couple of million annually."

Pot Plants Grew in Yard

A 17-year-old youth was charged with possession of marijuana after Esquimalt police found a number of marijuana plants growing in the back yard of his parent's home at 1049 Wurtele.

David John Flewin pleaded guilty in Victoria provincial court Wednesday.

Crown said police found 69 marijuana plants, some growing to a height of 18 inches. Four cut marijuana plants were lying in the sun to dry.

In addition police found a quarter ounce of homegrown marijuana in the youth's bedroom in the house.

Flewin told the court his father knew nothing about the garden though his mother did, and had told him to get rid of it.

"It's a curious operation for a 17-year-old to be in," said

Judge William Ostler. "You know you could have been charged with cultivation of marijuana which is a far more serious offence."

Ostler remanded the youth to July 16 for a presentence report.

Royal Oak Tops GH in Stability

Differences between Royal Oak and Gordon Head residents were pinpointed this week in a report by Saanich municipal planner Tom Loney.

Loney's report is based on questionnaires completed by residents of the two areas.

Royal Oak residents are more tolerant toward townhouses. Thirty-eight per cent said they would be acceptable while only 24 per cent of those polled in Gordon Head were in favor.

Royal Oak people stay around longer:

"For various social and economic reasons," observed Loney, "the people of Royal Oak are somewhat less mobile and likely to have a more permanent stake in this area's future."

The two areas also agree to disagree on the amount of commercial development they want in their districts.

Only 22 per cent in Royal Oak said there should be no further commercial development. Most wanted a large shopping centre, rather than a number of small scattered outlets.

In Gordon Head, 78 per cent of those polled completely tabooed commercial development. Some compromised, saying the odd corner store would be tolerated.

When it comes to buying more parkland, 51 per cent of the Royal Oak residents said they had enough while 62 per cent in Gordon Head wanted more.

On one point the two areas were in complete harmony.

Half of those questioned in both areas said they were not adverse to having duplexes near them.

Loney noted this appeared to indicate duplexes "may be generally acceptable to the community."

SEX IN SAANICH

A study of sex habits?

Saanich Ald. "Sandy" Noel questioned whether the municipality is compiling its own Kinsey Report when the lands, planning and housing committee met this week.

He wondered what "sex breakdown" meant in a report by municipal planner Tom Loney, based on questionnaires completed by Royal Oak residents.

Reading further down the page, Noel asked could sex breakdown be the answer "seldom or never" as given by 40 men.

The committee chuckled as Loney explained the question dealt with how many residents used public buses and replies had been separated into the two sexes.

In 1846, John Dewar went into business for himself as a spirit merchant at 111 High Street, Perth, Scotland.

Special, because the single whiskies are not shocked by being dumped together at once. We let them rest quietly awhile, so that the blend will have greater uniformity and more dependable consistency.

In this Scottish city, on the banks of the River Tay, nothing much has changed. The castle is still there, and every year, from January to December, when the air is chill and pure and the water is cold, the people of Perth make Dewar's Scotch Whisky.

Son Tommy Dewar looked for new markets at the 1885 Brewer's Show and used a bagpipe to entertain. (The first commercial use of music?)

Sir Thomas Dewar became famous for such terse comments as, "Do right and fear no man; don't write and fear no woman."

Vigilantes Aim At Protestants

BELFAST (UPI) — The threat from a new Protestant extremist group in Northern Ireland of more bombings in the Irish Republic has forced Dublin to set up a nationwide civilian vigilante force, security sources said today.

The announcement of the volunteer force in Dublin came three days after a previously unknown Protestant group in Belfast, the "Young Militants," said it had a hand in bombs that killed 32 in the republic last month.

The group threatened a full-scale campaign against targets in the republic unless the Dublin government cracked down on the illegal Irish Republican Army.

The Belfast security sources said Dublin took the warning seriously and set up the new organization Wednesday as a first step to counter it.

Prime Minister Liam Cosgrave told the Dublin parliament the vigilantes would operate from local police stations and search for suspicious-looking automobiles or packages that could disguise bombs.

Cosgrave's announcement was followed by a call in Belfast for a similar organization in Northern Ireland, rocked in recent weeks by a renewed bomb campaign by the IRA provisional wing.

The Dublin move coincided with one of the harshest attacks on the IRA by a Catholic prelate in Northern Ireland.

"The IRA are agents of the devil," said the Rev. Dr. Edward Daly. "They and their various satellite organizations should not be assisted politically, financially or otherwise until they proclaim a total and permanent cease-fire in this community."

He addressed his remarks to Catholics in the Bogside and Creggan areas, major IRA strongholds. The IRA, seeking to end British rule of Ulster and unite with the republic, is recruited from the Catholic community in both parts of Ireland.

The addition of 56 acres to Nairn Falls provincial park-campsite near Mount Currie brings the total area to 423 acres.

Increasing recreational pressure will be met with more camping facilities, the recreation and conservation department said Wednesday.

Nairn Falls is on the Green River a few miles northeast of Whistler Mountain. Both the Pemberton Highway and B.C. Railway right of way pass closely to the park at this point.

The additional acres of Crown land will help provide a buffer between campsites and the traffic.

HANDY PLACE FOR A FIRE

VALPARAISO, Fla. (AP) — Volunteer firemen didn't have far to go when they responded to an emergency call — it was in the fire house.

But they had a tough time fighting the blaze because the flames kept them from their equipment.

They had to use garden hoses to fight the fire that caused an estimated $25,000 damage.

Limited Hearings Extended on Dow

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The National Energy Board has decided to continue "ex parte" hearings into the application by Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd., to export 10 billion pounds of ethylene to the U.S. between 1977 and 1987, despite a host of calls for full public hearings.

But in light of the interventions from a number of gas and petrochemical companies claiming that insufficient time and details about the hearing were available for adequate submissions on the application, the NEB has decided to allow a second round of written submissions from "persons involved in this hearing," supposedly following the "ex parte" hearing expected to be completed by the end of this week.

Dow Chemical, the applicant, will also be afforded the opportunity to also make a second written submission, described as a "written reply."

But, based on the short statement of decision read by hearing panel chairman J. G. Stabback Wednesday, only parties invited to make written submissions before the hearing will be allowed to submit additional interventions.

Only intervenors in the previous NEB hearing on a proposed Dome Petroleum Ltd. Alberta-to-Sarnia pipeline were invited to make submissions on the ethylene export application. Part of the Dome pipeline is to be used to carry ethylene from Dow's plant to Sarnia and to the U.S. for export.

Stabback said that "in disposing of Dow's application the Board will give consideration to all material then before it," including the second round of written submissions.

The date for filing the additional submissions is to be announced later in the ex parte hearing, during which only Dow participates in answering NEB questions and in cross-examining its own witnesses.

A written text of Stabback's comments that was passed out during the hearing described the existing hearing as an "ex parte" hearing with the word "public" inserted in hand writing in the printed text, so the phrase became "an ex parte public hearing."

The NEB also ruled that it will be considering on an "ex parte" basis only the first 1.2-billion pound-a-year ethylene plant proposed by Dow, using ethane feedstock.

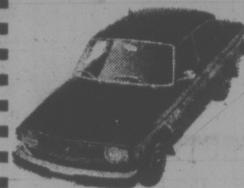

Half of the planned expansion phase adding a further 1.2 billion pounds a year starting in late 1978 and using ethane as feedstock will only be considered by the Board "after what I might call full public hearings with notices having been given to all interested parties and those parties having been afforded an opportunity to be heard to take an active party in the hearing," Stabback said.

Intervenors had contended that all of the export hearings should be held in this manner, since the ethylene exports will have tremendous impact on the petrochemical industry.

The NEB explained that the ethane to be used in the first plant, scheduled to come on stream in late 1976 or early 1977, had already been covered by the Board's natural gas surplus calculations contained in the NEB's January, 1974 decision on the Dome pipeline application.

HYDRO BONDS UP TO 9 1/2%

Rate of interest to be paid on B.C. Hydro and Power Authority bonds, Series V, will go up 1 per cent to 9 1/2 per cent in keeping with a rise this week in the prime bank lending rate.

The $50 million Hydro series to be issued by Mar. 31, 1975, was authorized in April when the rate of interest was set at 8 1/2 per cent. Borrowing will be from the government of Canada by means of the Canada Pension Plan Investment Fund.

The Bank of Montreal was the first to raise its prime rate this week, by 1/2 per cent to a rate of 11 1/2 per cent.

A second provincial order in council this week authorized short-term borrowing of up to $50 million in the form of notes, at a rate not to exceed the chartered bank prime rate, also on behalf of Hydro and guaranteed by the province. They will mature no later than next Mar. 31.

The notes may be of three classes: interest-bearing without coupons; interest-bearing with coupons, and non-interest-bearing. Agent is the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

More Producers Raise Steel Tab

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — U.S. Steel Corp., the largest producer in the United States, followed the lead of second-ranked Bethlehem Steel and raised prices Wednesday by about 15 per cent on products used in the construction, automobile and appliance industries.

The products represent about half of U.S. Steel's shipments, the company said. In 1973, U.S. Steel's sales totalled $7 billion.

U.S. Steel said it is increasing the base price on hot rolled, cold-rolled and galvanized sheets as well as structural plates and rails.

U.S. Steel did not comment on its reasons for the increases.

Recession Within Months,

Fishery Pledge From Trudeau

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

DIGBY, N.S. — Prime Minister Trudeau promised Wednesday to re-create a separate department of fisheries, bowing to pressure from Atlantic Liberals.

The prime minister surprised residents of this town at a Liberal election campaign rally by stating that he will split up the portfolio held by Fisheries and Environment Minister Jack Davis, seeking re-election as member for Capilano on Vancouver's North Shore.

Trudeau acknowledged that the fisheries portfolio is an "important" one, and said that to recognize this, he will separate the two now held by Davis — environment and fisheries.

He noted that a recent Liberal "Atlantic Conference" had called for the establishment of a separate fisheries department, claiming that with government reorganization in 1970 that portfolio had been submerged in the newly-created environment department.

"I have now come around to your request for a full-time minister to handle fisheries programs," Trudeau told a campaign rally here, "because it's an important industry."

He did not say which portfolio he would take away from Davis.

Trudeau's appearance here was his third during a day spent touring Nova Scotia.

DRUG SUBSIDIES SET IN MANITOBA

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government's universal pharmacare program will go into effect Jan. 1, 1973, Health Minister Saul Miller said today.

Under the program, the government will pay 80 per cent of the cost of prescription drugs over $50 a year for each family unit in the province.

Miller said the program also may cover the cost of communities, represented by Tories.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield has already promised to reappoint a fisheries minister.

Trudeau said all fisheries policies agreed to at a recent meeting of the 32 Liberal candidates in the Atlantic provinces now are accepted by the federal Liberal party.

"We subscribe to them and they will be our policies."

The programs included such previously-announced moves as a $150-million, five-year plan to restore small harbors in the region.

Trudeau said the plan to stabilize fishermen's incomes would include price-support programs similar to those now offered farmers, but the emphasis would be on encouraging production.

His government's approach was one of telling all producers: "We don't want to put a straitjacket on you. We want you to produce," because greater production ultimately would lead to stable prices.

Throughout the day, the prime minister and his wife Margaret were accompanied by provincial Premier Gerald Regan.

Trudeau attacked Conservative proposals to freeze wages and prices and said the opposition was divided on all major issues.

Stanfield had said he would not freeze the farm and fish producers — "but that's what the people are complaining about, the price of food."

certain non-prescription drugs such as insulin and nitroglycerine.

The universal program of drug subsidies was first announced in this year's budget and is an expansion of a plan for senior citizens which has been operating for about a year.

The minister said the senior citizens program will be continued through to the end of the year and then merged into the universal program.

MAGOG — Canada will face a recession within months if thorough action is not taken immediately to control escalating inflation, Conservative leader Stanfield said Wednesday.

Trudeau said all fisheries policies agreed to at a recent meeting of the 32 Liberal candidates in the Atlantic provinces now are accepted by the federal Liberal party.

"We subscribe to them and they will be our policies."

treal and spoke briefly to about 50 residents.

There was also a stop at Club Nautique de St. Jean, where Stanfield addressed about 100 people before proceeding to the meeting in Magog.

Everywhere he went the message was "inflation," and Stanfield spoke almost entirely in French.

Addressing the senior citizens, there was a reference to the government's recommendation to save money by eating.

In a visit to Brome-Missisquoi riding, to speak on behalf of candidate Heward Graffey, the Conservative leader was obviously inspired by new bank interest rate increases announced yesterday.

"We can't continue to have the present inflation rate without endangering our economic, and our political institutions..."

"Revolutions have started with less cause," he declared.

Stanfield warned that if the Trudeau government is returned inflation will continue to grow because it has made it clear it will do nothing about it.

The Tory leader also renewed his plea to Quebecers to return enough Conservative members to give the province good representation in the government that will be formed after July 8.

He said he has no doubt he will be forming that government on the strength of support in English-speaking Canada.

A crowd of about 350 provided a warm reception for Stanfield — but citizens of the riding are obviously getting used to a great deal of attention from politicians.

Seven cabinet ministers, the prime minister and Margaret Trudeau have campaigned in Brome-Missisquoi in an effort to sink the hard-working Graffey, one of three Quebec Conservatives in the Commons at dissolution.

During the day Stanfield carried his inflation message to Cornwall where former Ontario cabinet minister Fern Guindon is trying to win St. Mont-Dundas riding for the Tories.

Later, accompanied by several Montreal area candidates Stanfield visited Residence Maisonneuve, a senior citizens home in East end Mon-ing peanut butter and day-old bread.

And there was a somewhat bitter reference to Liberal campaign literature being used in Quebec, but nowhere else in the country, which refers to "Monsieur Trudeau and Mr. Stanfield."

"That is the action of a government that knows it is on the way out in the rest of Canada and is desperate to hold on to its strength in Quebec," declared the Conservative leader.

It's No One-Man Band When Dutchmen Play

FRANKFURT (AP) — Can anything stop Johnny Cruyff and his team of Flying Dutchmen? That's the question at soccer's 1974 World Cup, and the answer, says Argentine coach Vladislao Capo, is no.

Cap saw his men take a 4-0 beating from Cruyff and the Netherlands Wednesday night and said later of the Dutchmen: "They are the finest team I have ever seen."

He is quick to point out that the accent was on the word team. Many critics, and many coaches, thought that when they came here, the Netherlands would prove a one-man band, with Cruyff the only thoroughbred.

It hasn't worked that way, although Cruyff, with two goals against the Argentines, remains the outstanding personality of this World Cup. With Cruyff's men heading for the top of Group A in this eight-team second round, it could be the Netherlands vs. West Germany in the final at Munich's Olympic Stadium July 7.

The West Germans shot back to something close to their best form in beating the powerful Yugoslavs 2-0 at Duesseldorf.

Manager Helmut Schoen brought in Uli Hoeneß as a second-half substitute and he set the game alight.

Hoeneß had been among those criticized by West German fans for alleged lack of effort in earlier games. This time he revitalized the German attack and set up Gerd Müller's 82nd-minute goal. Paul Breitner had scored the first with a long-range shot in the 39th.

Schoen took the result as a total answer to his accusers.

"We beat an outstanding Yugoslav team and scored two fine goals," he said.

In other matches, Brazil beat East Germany 1-0 in Group A at Hanover and Poland kept its unblemished record by beating Sweden 1-0 in Group B at Stuttgart.

Brazil's victory was less than impressive, though two points keep the reigning champions in with a chance of winning their fourth World Cup. The goal came from Rivelino, a typical hammerblow from a 20-yard free kick in the 62nd minute.

Otherwise, the champions showed little penetration against a packed East German defence. Still, the Brazilians have yet to yield a goal in this World Cup, and goalkeeper Leao says he expects it to stay that way.

Poland's goal came from Grzegorz Lato, who joined team-mate Andrzej Szarmach as top scorer of the series. Each has scored five. Rep. of the Netherlands is next on the list with four.

REMAINING MATCHES

touchdown passes, Gerry Organ booted three field goals and two converts and Dick Adams kicked two punt singles for winners. For All-Stars, Jim Young and Terry Evansen got touchdowns; Dave Cutler kicked two field goals, two converts and single, and Zenon Andrusyshyn booted single. (CP Wirephoto).

NFL OWNERS 'RESIGNED' TO STRIKE

WASHINGTON (AP) — A strike that could eliminate the National Football League exhibition season appeared in the making today after NFL owners and players reached an impasse in contract negotiations.

The NFL Players Association has said the union will strike Monday unless its 63 demands, including the so-called "freedom demands," are met.

The contract talks were broken off Wednesday midway through a scheduled three-day meeting that began Tuesday.

Federal mediator James Scarce said the negotiations had reached a point "where we cannot be constructive."

"We're resigned to a strike," said John Thompson, executive director of the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining agent.

Strike Signs Show At Tiger-Cat Camp

By The Canadian Press

First visible sign of a player "strike" against the Canadian Football League was evident in Hamilton Wednesday when 14 Tiger-Cat veterans set up a picket line that was honored by rookies who have been attending practice training camp at Ivor Wynne Stadium.

The Toronto Globe and Mail said George Reed, president of the Canadian Football League Players' Association, instructed the veterans to man the picket lines, but Gerry Petrie, a consultant with the CFLPA, said Wednesday night in Ottawa that the association knew about plans for picketing but did not authorize the action.

The players' representatives are meeting in Ottawa in an attempt to settle a dispute about financial benefits for the players. Almost all the CFL veterans resigned June 16 and said they will not report to training camps until a settlement is reached.

Before setting up the picket lines in Hamilton, the veterans met the rookies and urged them not to cross the lines. The rookies agreed and there were no incidents.

However, despite a report that Reed had instructed other CFL teams to follow the Tiger-Cats lead, there was no picketing at any of the other eight cities that have CFL franchises.

Tiger-Cats coach Jerry Williams advised the rookies Wednesday night at a special meeting that failure to cross the picket lines could result in suspension.

"I simply told them (the rookies) of the possible consequences of not reporting for practice. They signed a contract to play, and if they don't then they have breached the contract."

Besides forfeiting free room, meal allowances and transportation, the rookies faced the possibility of suspension from organized professional football.

"The other leagues will respect the suspensions," said Williams.

Garney Henley, veteran wide receiver, said all the veterans are in favor of picketing and he promised that they would support the rookies in the event of suspensions.

WESTERN SPEEDWAY

DRIVERS TRY AGAIN

Western Speedway track manager Reg Midgley and his staff are hoping the weatherman is wrong about tonight after rain forced postponement of the NASCAR Western Grand National's Victoria 150 late-model super-stock race Wednesday night.

The weather forecast for today and Friday is cloudy with showers.

Time trials for tonight's racing, which counts toward the Canadian championship portion of the circuit, are scheduled for 7. Racing is slated to start at 8.

Labatts Blanked In Pitching Duel

Pitchers were in the spotlight Wednesday night when Royal Oak Sporting Goods edged Labatts 20-1 in a stuffy McGinnis Softball League game at Central Park.

Joe Mathieson struck out nine batters and walked only one on his way to a four-hitter for Labatts, but lost the game in the second inning on singles by Rick Bate and Ken Grexton and a throwing error.

Oilers Thumped

Ross McKinstry blasted in three goals Wednesday night to lead Esquimalt Teamsters to a 13-5 decision over Victoria Oilers in a B.C. Junior "B" Lacrosse League game at Memorial Arena.

Dale Roberts, Jerry Cadwallader, Steve Buckley and Rick LaPointe each added two goals to the Teamster's total while Bob Clifford topped Oilers with two.

James Bay Climbs

James Bay Athletic Association nipped second-place Speedway Motors 8-6 Wednesday night at Macdonald Park to move into fourth place in the Commercial Men's Softball League.

Chris Survives Marathon

WIMBLEDON (AP) — Chris Evert came back from a darkness-delayed match, reeled off two games and beat Lesley Hunt 8-6, 5-7, 11-9 today, equaling the longest women's singles tennis match in Wimbledon history today.

Only in 1970, when Margaret Court took 46 games to beat Billie Jean King in the final, 14-12, 11-9, have women competed so long on Wimbledon's centre court.

Miss Evert, the No. 2 seed from the United States, and her unranked Australian epponent fought for two hours, 45 minutes Wednesday and Miss Evert appeared on the brink of defeat. But she rebounded for the triumph today in only six minutes before play on other courts again was halted by rain.

Among the players caught by today's rain was Bjorn Borg, the No. 5 seed from Sweden who was locked in a duel with Ross Case of Australia when their match was called by darkness Wednesday.

Borg, playing a second-round match, was leading 2-1, 5 sets, but trailing the fourth 1-1 after deliberately hitting two shots out of the stadium in anger because the match wasn't stopped sooner in deference to the hour.

When the two teen-agers arrived at Wimbledon, Miss Evert, 19, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Borg, 18, of Sweden, declared they feared no one, but top-seeded John Newcombe, the 30-year-old Australian who has won three titles, warned it would take more than youthful strength to win the singles trophies.

"Matches on the centre court at Wimbledon are won and lost up here," Newcombe said, touching his head. "Ability and power are not enough."

Newcombe and fellow veterans Stan Smith and Ilie Nastase advanced Wednesday to the third round.

Borg also came back today and beat Case 6-3, 6-1, 8-5, 7-5.

Borg, wearing an orange jacket despite Wimbledon's all-white rule, played well on the slippery surface and repeatedly caught Case flat-footed with drop shots.

The teams were tied 5-5 at the end of the first period and Coquitlam held only a 10-8 lead after two periods. But the home team poured on the pressure in the final period and the Bakers wilted.

Harry Powless and George Musseu scored five goals each for the J-Hawks while Norm Baker led Victoria with three goals.

'Little Guy' Bops Astros;

Expos Rise With a Sinker

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Good things come in small packages, but not for Houston Astros. Fred Norman saw that.

Norman is a little guy who pitches for Cincinnati Reds, chasing Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League's West Division.

"I do like pressure," said the 5-foot-8 Norman. "I've had pressure all my life because of being small."

The Reds took some of the pressure off Norman's diminutive shoulders Wednesday night by scoring six runs in the ninth inning to whip the Astros 9-1.

Elsewhere, the Dodgers nipped Atlanta Braves 5-4; New York Mets edged Chicago Cubs 5-4 in 12 innings; Montreal Expos blanked Philadelphia Phillies 2-0; Pittsburgh Pirates pounded St. Louis Cardinals 7-2; and San Diego Padres dropped San Francisco Giants 4-0.

Dave Concepcion's first homer since May 12 gave the Reds a 2-1 lead in the seventh inning. An inning later, Dan Driessen belted his second homer of the season for a 3-1 lead.

Norman, who struck out six and walked one, raised his record to 8-5 and lowered his earned-run average to 2.18. When Steve Rogers of the Expos is on top of his sinker, he's on top of his game.

"I had my sinker working beautifully tonight," said Rogers, who finally got his eighth victory after six straight losses with a four-hitter over Philadelphia.

Ron Hunt doubled home Barry Foote in the eighth inning to break up a duel between Rogers and Steve Carlton.

Mike Marshall, 9-3, is changing the image of relief pitchers.

Relievers are supposed to save victories for the starters.

But Marshall has won the last five games the Dodgers have won, including the last two over Atlanta.

It was Marshall's 48th game of the season—covering 84 2/3 innings—and his eighth straight, one short of equaling the National League for consecutive appearances.

Joe Ferguson slumped two home runs, one of them tying the game in the ninth inning, then Manny Mota drilled a run-scoring pinch single for the victory.

Hull and Howe Family Named to Team

CALGARY (CP) — Gordie Howe of Houston Aeros and Bobby Hull of Winnipeg Jets were named Wednesday as two of the players certain to join Team Canada '74 this fall in its eight-game exhibition series with the Soviet Union.

General-manager Bill Hunter of Team Canada also announced that goaltender Gerry Cheevers of Cleveland Crusaders and Howe's two sons, Mark and Marty, will be among the 25 players when camp opens in Edmonton Sept. 1.

Coach Billy Harris, named coach of the year in the World Hockey Association last season for his efforts with Toronto Toros, said additional players will be named before Aug. 1, when the full team will be identified at a major news conference in Toronto.

The selections give Howe, Hull and Cheevers their first opportunity to represent Canada in international competition involving a professional club.

The first Team Canada was selected after Howe had retired from Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League and after Hull had jumped from Chicago Black Hawks and Cheevers from Boston Bruins.

Cheevers played well in an exhibition game last season as he bolstered a Western Canada Hockey League all-star team in a 7-5 victory over Moscow Selects.

Hull, Harris and Hunter agreed that the biggest advantage Team Canada '74 has is that it has learned from the mistakes of Team Canada '72.

"The adrenaline is flowing already," said Hull, who was turned down by the NHL in his bid to play in the last international series.

"It wasn't pleasant for me at that time when I realized that because Al Eagleson was involved I would have to watch the game on the television tube. Feeling that way, I'm still optimistic there are a number of NHL players with enough pride to say they'd like to represent Canada."

He said Phil Esposito and Bobby Orr of Boston initially seemed interested in playing for Team Canada this fall.

"Orr said he would give his eye teeth because he missed a chance last time, too" — but his attitude had changed recently.

"Our major hope is that there are guys with enough guts to say simply they'd like to participate."

Hull played with Esposito in Chicago and objected when the big centre was traded away.

"That's the first guy I thought of when coach Harris told me to go out and find a centre."

Hunter, general manager of Edmonton Oilers of the WHA, flatly predicted that this team would be stronger than the 1972 edition that won a thrilling series.

"We'll have youth and experience. We'll be fast and we'll persevere."

"The best thing ... is that we'll be ready. We won't under-estimate the Soviets as Team Canada did two years ago."

To help get the club ready Hunter announced a five-game exhibition series has been scheduled with a WCHL all-star team to be prepared by coach-general manager Scotty Munro of Calgary Centennials.

Team Canada will play in Medicine Hat, Alta., Sept. 5, Regina or Brandon, Sept. 6, Calgary Sept. 8, Saskatoon Sept. 10 and Edmonton Sept. 12.

Hunter said the extreme speed of the Soviet team provided as big a problem as the Russians' fitness in the first international series.

"We know the juniors will make us skate. The WCHL stood tall last year when we lost 3-2 and then bounced back to win 7-5 against the strongest touring team ever put together by the Soviet Union."

Harris said the series with the juniors will cap a brief training camp which, in effect, has started now.

AS OF JULY 1 YOU MUST HAVE A DRIVER'S CERTIFICATE AND A DRIVER'S LICENCE TO DRIVE.

Driver's certificates are something new for British Columbia motorists ... a way of spreading the cost of automobile insurance between vehicle owners and drivers.

Effective July 1, you'll need both a driver's certificate and a driver's licence in order to drive a car. Without your driver's certificate, your driver's licence is not valid and you could also find yourself without insurance coverage. If you drive without a certificate you risk a minimum fine of $250 and 10 demerit points.

Application forms for certificates were mailed out last March so you should have received one by now. Just sign and date it where indicated, then take it to any Motor Vehicle Licence Office for processing. REMEMBER, IT'S

TOO LATE TO MAIL IT SO BRING IT IN.

If for some reason your application didn't arrive in the mail, take your driver's licence to any Motor Vehicle Licence Office and you'll get your certificate.

How much you pay for your driver's certificate will depend upon the number of demerit points on your driving record.

IF YOUR BIRTHDAY IS IN JULY OR AUGUST you'll soon receive your second application form. This second form is actually to renew your driver's certificate until your next birthday in 1975. Your first driver's certificate was for the start-up period — March 1, 1974 until your 1974 birthday, and it expires on your birthday.

If you have any questions call your Autoplan Information Centre at 665-2800. Outside Vancouver please call collect.

HERE'S HOW TO GET YOUR DRIVER'S CERTIFICATE.

1. Sign and date your application in two places, as in the sample.

2. Take all three portions to any Motor Vehicle Licence Office for processing.

3. If your application form has not arrived in the mail, take your driver's licence to any Motor Vehicle Licence Office and you'll get your certificate.

Introspection: A Medical Field?

By PETER MICHAELSON

TORONTO (CP) — The new science of the relationship between the body, the mind and the environment—called psychotronics—is seeking admittance into the court of traditional medicine.

The Canadian Academy of Psychotronics is hoping to be accepted as a new section of the Ontario Medical Association, and the academy's organizers are making a pitch to OMA members at the Canadian Medical Association annual meeting.

In psychotronics a person's consciousness and energy are used to influence his mental and physical activity through meditative techniques.

One of its products is bio-feedback training, a technique in which electronic monitors are used to feed back to a person biological information about himself.

HOLDS POTENTIAL

Dr. Terry Burrows of Toronto, a medical doctor trying to set up the new OMA section, told doctors that psychotronics holds great potential for medicine, particularly for psychosomatic medical problems.

Biofeedback training, as one example, teaches people to relax, he said. It was well established that "anxiety and stress are components in any illness."

The training enabled a person to know simultaneously what is going on in his consciousness while he observes the response of his physical system on the electronic monitoring devices.

Kirlian photography, which attempts to photograph an aura of energy around any living object by exposing the film with high-energy electric current instead of light, may also have medical applications, he said.

More research was needed, but it might be that some diseases such as cancer or diabetes can be quickly diagnosed because they cause distinctive patterns or colors in the photograph.

Dr. Burrows and others have a suite in the convention hotel for the week-long meeting and have continuous demonstrations of biofeedback techniques as well as talks by Gary Pook, mechanical engineer from Monterey, Calif., who describes himself as the world's top expert in Kirlian photography.

Among the biofeedback instruments is a galvanic skin resistance monitor which measures a person's anxiety or calm according to perspiration levels. The principle is that a person's sweating is controlled by the nervous system which, in turn, is controlled by thought.

Another biofeedback instrument measures the extent to which a person can will that a spot on his body warm up or cool down.

Janitors Mulling Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 1,000 members of the Service Employees Union, Local 244 will meet Sunday to vote on strike action against eight janitorial contractors in the Lower Mainland.

A strike would affect Vancouver International Airport, most downtown office buildings and many others throughout the rest of the Metro area.

The meeting was called after the contractors rejected a settlement proposed by mediator Peter Dowding.

Union spokesman Bob Berger said the proposed two-year contract would increase the base rate for light janitorial work by women to 3.50 an hour from $2.41 on July 1, with an additional 50 cents an hour next July 1. The same increases would go to men now making $2.86 an hour doing heavy janitorial work and window cleaners earning $4.06 an hour.

BIG BOOK GIVEAWAY

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of B.C. is giving away 11,000 surplus books to the province's 11 regional colleges. The books will first be available to colleges with the smallest library collections.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Fraser River was re-opened to net fishing for a 24-hour period starting at 8 a.m. today. The river had been closed to fishing since Friday because of high water.

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — Agriculture Minister David Stupich promised Tuesday to take action on complaints by Peace River farmers that wolves are making serious inroads into their livestock, but he did not elaborate.

A delegation met with the minister here and told him more than 50 head of livestock have been maimed or killed by wolves in the past three weeks.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Greater Vancouver regional district has urged the provincial government to delay a final decision on secondary sewage treatment for the Fraser River pending further study into the system.

OCEAN FALLS (CP) — United Paperworkers International Union has retained certification at the provincial government's Ocean Falls pulp operation, defeating the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada 196-61 in a certification vote.

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Liberal leader David Anderson says that although he is not calling for the resignations of MLAs who have expressed willingness to drop their party affiliations to join a Unity Party, they should put the question to constituency executives in their ridings.

Drop Seen In July 8 Voters

VANCOUVER (CP) — The senior returning officer in British Columbia predicts a drop in voter turnout for the July 8 federal election.

Arthur Walker, who has been a returning officer in Vancouver since 1935, said today he expects between 68 and 72 per cent of eligible voters to turn out.

In the last federal election, 73 per cent of those eligible voted in B.C.

The national average was 77 per cent. In the 1968 election, the province matched the national average of 76 per cent.

Walker said he expects a sharp drop in the turnout at the advance polls Saturday and Monday because people will be out of town for the holiday weekend.

In 1972, 15,567 people voted at advance polls but Walker expects only a third of that number this time.

Canadian Barred

SALISBURY (AP) — The Rhodesian government declared Canadian broadcaster Richard Bronstein, 29, a prohibited immigrant Monday, three days after he arrived in the country. No reason was given.

Don't Knock the Nuclear It's Good for Business

Another thing that just chokes you with pride in this free and independent Canada is our nuclear policy.

Why, only last week our glorious leader stamped his dainty foot quite petulantly when it was learned that France and China had tested nuclear explosives.

No need for it at all, said Pierre Elliot Trudeau crossly and went on: "We are fearful that an expansion of the nuclear explosives club represents a severe setback for the efforts of mankind to control the spread of this wasteful, destructive, terrifying technology."

A perfectly darling speech, true, but if Pierre Elliot has any feelings, one way or the other, about a concrete blockhouse, just 150 miles north of Victoria, that's crammed with that wasteful, destructive, terrifying hardware, they're not for us to know.

Newspapers across the country pontificated sternly when India, with Canada's unwitting help, held a similar test. We promptly cut off most of our aid to them.

But it was a one-day story, with little or no editorial comment, when it was revealed that nuclear war-heads are still kept at the ready at the Comox Canadian Forces Base — not experimental, test explosives for peaceful purposes, you understand, but sophisticated war-heads ready for combat.

We continue, in short, to be the harlots to the nuclear pimps of the western world, but you'd be hard-pressed to get more than a handful of Canadians who care enough to protest.

The area's leading hot-liner can hardly keep his lines clear of outraged adherents in a paranoiac, continuing attack against an American social worker he seeks to deport, a poor slob whose main crime seems to be that he's on the B.C. welfare rolls, but he breathes not a word about an indeterminate number of Americans who, within fallout range of his office, play nursemaid to the most obscene instruments of war yet devised.

There isn't a Canadian, I daresay, who'd buy a used car from Richard Milhaus Nixon, yet, as commander-in-chief of all the American forces, his word is all that's needed to activate nuclear missiles on Canadian soil. And do we care? Hell, no. We care more about the price of the beef that goes into our bellies.

Some nine years ago, when I essayed my one only venture outside the newspaper business, as a ban-the-bomb marcher in Comox, I endured the jeers of the Comox servicemen and business men whose harlotry was very direct — the nuclear base was either good for their careers or good for local business.

A couple of weeks ago, when the Comox MLA, Karen Sanford, arranged a protest demonstration at the base, the counter-demonstration was only too predictably the same. One eye-witness there tells me, however, that now the gunboots of servicemen were there to smear Mrs. Sanford and her pathetically small group of supporters as Communists, just as we were smeared nearly a decade ago.

Not much else had changed, either.

"Who the hell's trying to stir that old bogeyman up again?" asked the Comox mayor who, I'm told, is ex-air-force.

"There's no concern locally," said the Comox base commander. "I don't know why it's an issue all of a sudden."

The funny thing is that it wasn't Karen who made it an issue again, but Conservative member of Parliament from Victoria, Allan McKinnon who, having elicited the admission that the nuclear war-heads were still there, promptly crawled back into the wood-work of the Rideau Club or wherever it is that Conservative members hide when there seems an issue to be faced.

That put the ball in Mrs. Sanford's court, not by her own choice, but as the NDP MLA for Comox, and, though it is sure to cost her votes, she did not dodge the issue.

Karen's objection to the nuclear weaponry on our soil is simply that it destroys Canada's credibility as part of a third force in the world, that so long as we kiss America's behind (though she does not put it this unctuously) we will not be heard in the peace councils of the world.

Certainly, so long as we play our harlot's role in NORAD we have no more voice than any American state. How can our glorious leader put the knock on China or France or India when we carry on as willing or apathetic custodians of these vicious weapons?

But there's an even loonier, senseless side to this affair. The fact is that the nuclear weaponry stored at Comox is now totally obsolete and represents only a token of our military subservience to the Americans.

These war-heads, known as the Genie breed, are for air-to-air missiles meant to stop bombing planes before they reach the United States. Now, in the age of inter-continental missiles, they are as outmoded as the bow and arrow and there isn't a military expert, even in the Pentagon, who bothers to justify them.

Even Lester Pearson who, unaccountably, authorized them in the first place, in 1963, said they would be removed "at the earliest opportunity," though his predecessors have made not the slightest gesture in that direction.

Obviously, they and the American technicians who remain to activate them, are at Comox, at Bagotville, Quebec and Chatham, Nova Scotia, only as a disgusting symbol to remind the world that we Canadians are quite willing to remain as satellites and the last remaining, unquestioning friends of the U.S.A.

Why, even our defence minister, James Richardson, has said soothingly that "they are never airborne." That being the case why in God's name do we continue to provide a sanctuary for them with no more than a murmur of protest?

Oh, I tell you, it just chokes you up with pride in a free and independent Canada.

Symphony Faces Phase-Out: Gati

The Victoria symphony orchestra is sliding deeper and deeper into debt.

If the downward spiral isn't halted music director Lazio Gati says the orchestra may be phased out of existence.

In 1973 there was a deficit of $33,711, this year it's $45,185.

These annual deficits could go on snowballing," he said. "I don't want to end up in the middle of the season, saying to the orchestra, sorry no pay cheques, no concert this week."

Gati confounds the orchestra's image is not what it should be in the community and suggests those who solicit funds for it may not be using the right approach.

"We shouldn't have to depend on handouts from business people," he said. "The whole approach has been that we are a charitable organization."

The orchestra is a very important cultural institution without which the com-

Deported!

The wife of a man ordered deported Wednesday had no idea he had a criminal record nor that he was wanted in connection with a murder and armed robbery in the United States.

For three years she and her husband, Stephen Van Eyck, lived on a small farm near Sooke. Six months ago they had their first child.

Their life together came to a sudden end when Van Eyck admitted to immigration officials at a special hearing held here Wednesday his real name is Kenneth Anthony Zadel.

An American, born in Chicago 38 years ago, Zadel has been sought by the FBI since Jan. 26, 1971, for unlawful interstate flight to avoid prosecution for murder and attempted armed robbery in New Jersey. He was considered armed and dangerous.

But that's not the reason for his deportation.

Special inquiry officer Brian Cross, who conducted

She Didn't Know Her Husband Wanted for Murder in U.S.

the immigration hearing said Zadel was being deported because he was a prohibited person when he entered Canada.

Cross said Zadel was prohibited because he had been convicted of "crimes of moral turpitude" — auto larceny in 1952 and armed robbery in 1959, both in his native Chicago.

He has been held on a Canadian immigration warrant since June 15.

The warrant was issued five days after his appearance in Victoria provincial court when he was charged, as Van Eyck, with breaking and entering Buckerfield's Ltd. and stealing a safe containing $13,000.

He was subsequently charged with possession of a restricted weapon, a 38 calibre revolver, which police say they found in his Sooke home after his arrest June 9.

His true identity was discovered from fingerprints taken at the time.

Cross said Zadel hitchhiked across the border at Douglas near Blaine in 1970. He told immigration officials then he intended to stay in Canada about two weeks and was not asked his name.

His movements since that time are sketchy. It is believed he settled first in Sidney and then moved to a cabin near Point No Point, between Sooke and Jordan River.

He got married to an American woman, a landed immigrant in Canada — and, according to one source, worked for a time with Sooke Forest Products. His wife is a noted weaver, acknowledged one of the best in Canada, and has been hired to instruct at the Lester Pearson College of the Pacific when it opens.

Zadel was represented at the hearing by Victoria lawyer David Lissom. He did not contest the immigration board's findings.

Cross said it will likely be about a week before Zadel is turned over to U.S. immigration officials here.

"He (Zadel) wants to return to the U.S. to clear up the charges against him," Lissom said.

CHEMICAL WARNING

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadians are being bombarded, through their food, with 400 different chemical additives, many of which are harmful, says Sloan Alina Smith, president of the Canadian Health Food Association.

Smith of Penticton, said in an interview that pesticides, insecticides and chemical fertilizers are the worst offenders, but that preservatives and extenders also are replacing the nutrients food contains before processing.

Peanut butter, for example, used to be made from crushed peanuts and therefore had nutritional value, he said, adding that other oils now are used to extend processed peanut butter and both value and taste suffer.

The unsaturated fats of oil-fried peanut butter have been replaced by saturated fats, which are bad for the heart, Smith said.

"But people aren't told this on the labels, so everybody thinks they are getting the same thing they used to get."

He suggested supermarkets could reduce the need for many of the preservatives used in food by insisting on a quicker turnover of the products on their shelves.

Tom watches as Trisha butters hot soda bread

By SUSAN RUTTAN

Times Staff

The kindergarten class at Craigflower school has taken the first steps toward becoming gourmet cooks.

No, these 17 five and six-year-olds aren't making quiche lorraine or coq au vin yet, but they made some mighty good Irish soda bread this week.

They "read the recipe — written in symbols instead of words, with a drawing of a milk carton for milk and sugar cubes for sugar.

They poured in the ingredients and held the big bowl steady while one student stirred them up. Then about 20 eager hands dived in to help knead the dough.

Then they shaped the dough into large biscuits and put them to bake in a small toaster oven and electric frying pan. The classroom has no oven so teacher Irene Parkinson must use her own appliances.

All year the class has tasting sessions to expose the children to new foods. They taste a fresh pineapple and see a coconut opened up, usually for the first time. They make salads, cookies that require no baking, and jello. And by spring they're ready to do some serious baking.

To Mrs. Parkinson it's a "crime" that many mothers don't let their youngsters learn to cook.

IRISH SODA BREAD

4 cups flour
1 Tbsp. baking soda
2½ tsp. cream of tartar
1 Tbsp. sugar
1½ cups buttermilk
1 Tbsp. melted butter
Bake at 375 degrees 40 minutes.

Crock-Watching Moves In

By JEAN HEWITT

NEW YORK (NYT) — Technology has a way of going to extremes. First there was all that fuss about the microwave oven, which will cook a dish in the blink of an eye. Now comes a trend toward electric pots that cook a dish so slowly you have time for at least 40 winks.

For most dishes, the slow cookers — pots that can be set to cook food at about 200 degrees — have recommended cooking times of from six to 12 hours, which allows you to sleep, shop or work all afternoon or all day, then lift the cover off the pot and serve.

The process is especially good for preparing tough cuts of meat. The manufacturers claim it also uses little electricity (costing perhaps 5 or 6 cents for 10 hours), and that long cooking does not detract from the taste of food (a debatable assertion, but more on that later).

Slow cookery, of course, is not new. In the early 1940's, many electric stoves came with a built-in well-cooker that could be left on all day for a stew or pot roast.

Today's sophisticated slow cookers show versatility and variety. They come in a variety of sizes and materials, including stoneware, aluminum and porcelain enamel. Prices range from $20 to $50; sales totaled 2 million units in 1973, with double that projected for this year.

Since 1971, more than 200 most notably-controlled cookers offering a range of cooking temperatures have come on the market in the U.S. Two widely distributed models that are heated by wrap-around-the-sides heating elements — Rival Manufacturing Company's Crock-Pot, which sells for $21 to $30, and Nesco's Pot Luck (about $40) — were chosen to test just how well this mode of cooking works with a wide variety of foods.

There are a number of differences in the two pots, but a major one is that the temperature range for the Crock-Pot is 200 to 300 degrees and for the Pot-Luck it is 200 to 500 degrees, which means that the Pot-Luck can be used for normal cooking, baking and for browning meats that are to be slow-cooked.

A beef stew was cooked without prebrowning in the two pots at low setting (200 degrees) for 12 hours. The result from both was an extremely tender meat — so tender it was falling apart and the meat had a hint of stringiness and a certain lack of flavor. The vegetables retained their identity and were flavored with the broth, which had a hearty, meaty taste. (The meat did improve when it was stored overnight in the refrigerator, bringing total preparation time to two days (Now that's slow.)

New England-style baked beans, after presoaking and preboiling, cooked for 10 hours in the Crock-Pot and were perfect. A 3-pound piece of corned beef cooked in that pot for one hour at 300 degrees, then five hours at 200 degrees, was very tender and less salty than a similar piece cooked on top of the stove for half that time. The experience with baked potatoes, a 3-pound fryer and chicken-and-vegetable casserole led to the conclusion that shorter times than those recommended in the pots' instructions may give better results.

And sometimes, although long cooking is perfectly satisfactory, so is a shorter time. For instance, a split pea and ham hock soup was prepared in both pots at the low setting. After seven hours, the results were good, but both batches could have been eaten at the end of four hours.

Recipes for chilies and wines can be easily adapted for cooking in a slow cooker.

An independent laboratory's data indicates that slow cooking is safe because over such long periods of time the food reaches a temperature that's high enough and of long enough duration to destroy harmful organisms. One manufacturer claims that while the heat is destroying those organisms it is keeping intact more vitamins and other nutrients than does the conventional method.

Hamilton Beach-Scovill plans to introduce its Crock Watcher and Simmer-On slow cookers this summer. The Crock Watcher with wrap-around-the-side heating elements will allow low and high settings and can be set on an automatic shift that will start the pot on high and shift to low when the temperature of the food reaches 190 degrees, or after about 1½ hours.

Pickled Beef Tongue Has Become Luxury

By MARY MOORE

"I have a beautiful beef tongue in my freezer waiting for your reply — how to pickle it. You gave this years ago if I remember correctly but I've lost it. I think other readers would appreciate it." — Mabel O.

You have a long memory. The following recipe was given in my Times column in March of 1964 when tongues were not such luxury. It is an excellent recipe.

PICKLED (CORNED) TONGUE
1 large fresh beef tongue (approximately 3 lbs.)
2 tbsp. salt (first amount)
2 cloves garlic, chopped (divided — see below)
½ cup brown sugar (first amount)

5 tbsps. salt (second amount)
½ tsp. paprika
½ tsp. salt petre (buy at drug store)
¼ cup water
1 onion, chopped
2 bay leaves
¼ cup vinegar
1 carrot, sliced
1 cup brown sugar (second amount)
1 tbsp. salt (third amount)
Wash tongue. In bottom of large glass or earthenware bowl sprinkle 2 tablespoons salt and one clove garlic, chopped. Add tongue and cover with mixture of ½ cup brown sugar, 5 tablespoons salt, paprika and remaining garlic, chopped. Dissolve the salt petre in the ¼ cup water and pour over. Cover and weight down for 12 hours in refrigerator. Then add enough cold water to just cover tongue. Cover and refrigerate for 10 days, turning tongue over once each day. Remove tongue from brine. Do not wash. Put in large kettle, add onion, bay leaves, vinegar, carrot, the 1-3 cup brown sugar and remaining 1 tablespoon salt. Cover with cold water, put on lid, bring to boil and simmer for 4 hours until tender. Turn tongue over at half time. Cool tongue in liquid until you can handle it. Remove from liquid, peel off skin, remove root bones and ragged meat. Return to strained broth to completely cool. Chill thoroughly. Slices excellently.

LAWSUIT FACES MILK PUSHERS

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Serious discomfort and illness could be the "something" milk has for everyone, two consumers groups and an individual charged in a suit which seeks to halt a milk advertising campaign.

The suit, filed in a superior court, named as defendants California state director of agriculture C. B. Christensen, the Milk Advisory Board and its advertising agency.

The action was brought by the California citizen action group, Fight Inflation Together and author Paula Newhorn, who claimed milk made her sick.

The suit seeks a court order demanding that Christensen spend $15 million over the next four years to disseminate "truthful, scientific and accurate" information about milk.

It also demands precautionary labeling of milk and milk products, and $12,000 for Newhorn of which $2,000 would be for medical bills and $10,000 for "pain and suffering."

The plaintiffs also seek dismissal of all current milk advisory board members alleging they knowingly recommended an inaccurate advertising campaign to enrich milk producers.

The board, set up by Christensen, collects money from retail sales of milk for advertising.

tising, education and research.

The suit claims that milk can be dangerous for most nonwhite adults and many white adults.

Many adults, the plaintiffs claimed, including most nonwhites lack an enzyme called lactase, which is needed for digestion of milk. Serious gastrointestinal disorders can result from milk consumption, they claim.

The suit said milk and its products should be labeled.

Cooking Demonstrations

County Fair, long one of the most popular building features at the Pacific National Exhibition, returns to the 1974 Fair Aug. 17 through Sept. 2 with a completely new showcase for B.C. quality foods.

Culinary expert Mona Brun demonstrates on stage new ways of preparing B.C. foods. There will also be corsage and flower-arranging shows.

Another new feature is the daily lesson on preparing that old favorite, Chinese food.

Country Fair is sponsored by the B.C. Federation of Agriculture.

Associations participating are the B.C. Cattlemen, B.C. Fruit Growers, B.C. Egg Producers, B.C. Broiler Growers, B.C. Mushroom Growers, the Lower Mainland Co-Op and the B.C. Turkey Producers.

All of the booths will be rebuilt from the floor up, and recipes and food samples will be available.

Muffins Spark Interest In Breakfast

By HILDA BEASTALL

Interest, or lack of interest, in breakfast as a meal is a major health problem in many homes. A magic drink from a glass is depended on to maintain an active person through the critical morning hours. Whether this is a successful habit depends on each person.

Hot, homebaked fruit-and-nut muffins might be the answer when they are delicious to eat and good to sniff at while they are heating in the morning, or being fresh baked.

Although a little extra warmth is appreciated on cool summer mornings around six or seven o'clock, I can't see many of us mixing and baking muffins at that hour. But if two or three kinds are made at one baking when convenient, the required number will take only a few minutes to warm through on a grill or a foil plate on top of the range. Get them thoroughly heated without scorching, or you spoil the fine flavors.

Put them on to heat while the coffee is percolating. The two appetizing aromas bring pleased comments from confirmed no-breakfasters.

RAISIN NUT MUFFINS
2 Tbsp demerara sugar
1 Tbsp molasses
1/4-cup soft margarine or oil
2 small eggs
1 cup water
1 cup wholewheat flour
1/4-cup soy flour
2 tsp baking powder
2 tsp brewers yeast powder
1 cup wheat germ
1/4-cup skim milk powder
1 cup raisins
1/4-cup chopped nuts

Measure into sifter the flour, soyflour, baking powder, salt, brewers yeast and milk powder.

Into mixing bowl measure sugar, molasses and margarine or oil. Beat in the eggs and water with wooden spoon.

Sift dry ingredients into the sugar-egg mixture; add the wheat germ, raisins and nuts.

Sift only just enough to mix. It will be rather thin.

Spoon into greased muffin pans, filling about three quarters full to allow for rising.

I made eight large and 12 small muffins from these amounts. Sometimes I make a few in 4 1/2-inch foil pans (re-usable). These need the full 15 minutes baking, but take less time to fill. To serve, split across and spread with butter or peanut butter.

Bake at 375 degs. for about 15 minutes.

DATE NUT MUFFINS
1 cup chopped dates

TORONTO, June 27th — How we look forward to our Canadian Summers! And even though we know hot weather can play havoc with dietary habits, we still over-indulge our taste for luscious fruits and vegetables. Which often leads to a session of nausea and diarrhea. This is why I always have DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY on hand at all times. Pleasant-tasting Dr. Fowler's... formulated from roots and herbs... relieves nausea and cramps and restores intestinal health. Soothing and settling quickly and is non-constipating. Be sure to have Dr. Fowler's Extract on hand all summer.

HOW TO BEAT INFLATION? One of the most pleasant ways I know is to revert to simple, yet gracious entertaining. And what could be more enjoyable than having friends for Sunday tea. Your menu need not be elaborate... hot breads and muffins... an assortment of CHIVERS PURE JAMS AND MARMALADES... and, of course, plenty of fragrant, hot tea. You can always serve any of the eight delicious flavours of Chivers Pure Jams and Marmalades with confidence. (Our current favourites are Chivers Black Currant Jam and their Olde English Orange Marmalade). Afternoon tea... pleasant conversation... a delightful combination!

It's Cool-as-a-Cucumber Soup

By CRAIG CLAMBORN

Cold soups were a rarity in North America until the late Louis Diat came up with vichyssoise in the kitchen of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel about three decades ago. Today, cold soups of all persuasions help make sultry summers palatable. Three extraordinarily good ones are offered below.

Gazpacho, Corn And Zucchini

2 to 4 ears corn on the cob
2 pounds fresh, red, ripe tomatoes
1 onion, preferably a red onion, coarsely chopped
2 cloves garlic, finely minced
2 cups peeled, coarsely chopped cucumber
1 1/2 cups tomato juice
Salt and freshly ground pepper

1/4 cup olive oil
1/4 cup red wine vinegar
1/2 small zucchini, peeled
1 cup finely diced cucumber
3 tablespoons finely minced fresh basil or 1-teaspoon dried

1. Drop the shucked corn into boiling water to cover. Cover and when the water returns to the boil, remove it immediately from the heat. Let stand five minutes, no longer. Drain. Let the corn cool. Cut off the kernels. There should be about one cup.

2. Drop the tomatoes into boiling water to cover. Let stand 12 seconds and drain immediately. Pull the peel from the tomatoes, using a paring knife. Cut away and discard the core. Coarsely chop the tomatoes. There should be about four cups.

3. Put the tomatoes into the container of an electric blender. Blend well. Strain the soup into a bowl if it is to be served cold and chill. If it is to be served hot, return it to the stove and heat thoroughly.

4. Pour the mixture into a large bowl and add the olive oil and vinegar.

5. Cut the zucchini into fine dice and add it. Add the corn. Add the diced cucumber and basil. Add more salt and pepper to taste. Chill thoroughly.

Yield: Six to eight servings.

Cream of Carrot

1 pound carrots (8 to 10)
1 pound potatoes (3 to 5)

2 tablespoons butter

1 cup coarsely chopped onion

6 cups rich chicken broth

2 sprigs fresh thyme or 1/2 teaspoon dried

1 bay leaf

1 cup heavy cream

1/2 teaspoon Tabasco sauce, or more to taste

1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

1/2 teaspoon sugar

Salt and freshly ground pepper

1 cup cold milk

1. Trim off the ends of the carrots. Peel the carrots and potatoes with a swivel-bladed vegetable scraper. Cut the carrots into rounds. Cube the potatoes. Set aside.

2. Heat the butter in a kettle and add the onion. Cook briefly, stirring. Add the carrots, potatoes and broth and simmer 30 to 40 minutes until the carrots and potatoes are tender.

3. Put the mixture through a food mill and let it cool. Put it into the container of an electric blender and blend. This may have to be done in two stages. If the soup is to be served hot, bring it to the boil and add the remaining ingredients. When the soup returns to the boil, serve it piping hot.

YIELD: Eight servings.

4. Pour the mixture into a

Here are some more

matos separately in a covered ed container.

Be sure it's clean. Inspect leafy greens to make sure they are absolutely clean.

Strive for color. Choose salad greens with particular attention to variety and color. Try combinations of some dark and some light, some tangy and some only slightly bitter. Tomatoes, mushrooms, cucumbers, strips of meat or cheese will provide variety in color, texture and flavor. Let your imagination be your guide.

Serve these two terrific tossed salads to your family and friends this summer. They're the perfect accompaniment to any meal.

TOSSSED SUMMER SALAD

6 cups torn or shredded salad greens

1/2 cup diced or sliced celery

2 tablespoons chopped onion

1/2 cup sliced fresh mushrooms

1 green pepper, cut in rings

1/2 cup tomato wedges

1/2 teaspoon salt

1/8 teaspoon pepper

1/3 cup French or similar dressing

LETTUCE SALAD

1/8 head iceberg lettuce

1/2 cup whipping cream

1 teaspoon sugar

1/2 teaspoon salt

Dash pepper

1 tablespoon lemon juice

2 tablespoons finely chopped green onions

Wash and drain lettuce thoroughly. Tear into small pieces. Whip cream until stiff. Stir in remaining ingredients. Just before serving, add to lettuce and toss gently. 6 servings.

the Long-Lost Secret of Youth.

Labelled "Preventive for Gray Hair," the author informs us that "It does not by any means assume that a person is old because the hair has turned white . . . There are many reasons for this, such as late hours, nervous exhaustion, too much anxiety, giving away to violent passions; all have an evil tendency . . . There does not appear any probability of 'restoring' gray hair to its former color. We can only counsel moderation in all those pleasures that tend to an exciting, unhealthy mode of living. We give a recipe that a writer says she believes wards off gray hair:

Counselling Worth It

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe I'm actually writing a letter to Dear Abby! Wow, what a corny trip! I know you're not "God," but you say a lot in a few words and your answers make sense, so here goes:

I'm a 34-year-old married woman with two kids and a million problems. The biggest is my marriage. It's going downhill fast.

My husband and I fight all the time. We've got money problems, in-law problems, he says I'm a lousy housekeeper and he's right, and I say he spends too much time with the "boys" and not enough with me and the kids. (He's a sports freak). We can't even discuss our problems without ending up in a fight. The only thing we've got going for us is sex. That's terrific, but you can't stay in bed all the time.

Don't tell me we need "counselling." He'd never go. And I can't afford a shrink, so forget that.

DEAR MIS.: The answer I have for you, you won't like.

You need professional counselling. (Friends are a waste of time. They tell you only what they think you want to hear).

You say your husband won't go? Well, go alone. If you learn how to handle your husband, you will know more than you know now. And with luck, you can get him to go later.

If you need a shrink and can't afford one, your Family Service or Welfare Department can provide that at a price you CAN afford. Now get going, and let me hear from you in 30 days.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter was married for only five weeks last year. The marriage was annulled because her husband went back to his boyfriend. (Yes, you read right, I said, "boyfriend.") Our daughter then resumed her friendship with a fine young man she had known since childhood, and they are planning to be married in church this summer.

Should we send wedding invitations to our friends and relatives? I hesitate to do this because they already gave her one wedding gift. She didn't send the gifts back because she never got around to it. — In Doubt.

DEAR IN: Invite whomever you want. The matter of a gift will be up to them.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice about what to say when making a condolence call was particularly timely for me.

I recently went to the hospital to have a baby I desperately wanted. I returned home with empty arms. Our precious baby was stillborn.

You are right. Not everyone handles his grief in the same manner. Some find comfort in talking about it. Others do not. In my case, I recall only one, then or now.

Someone close said: "The only thing I can think of to say is that I love you."

Reaffirmation of one's love is important. Mrs. A.M.K.

DEAR ABBY: Re condolences: Many, many years ago we lost our first child when he was only a few months old. Of the many things written or said to me, I recall only one, then or now.

Free for the Asking

By HARRIET HART

Although some 80 per cent of our planet earth is covered with water, less than one hundredth of one per cent is freshwater.

The six-page folder "Water and We" explains that since our demands on this limited supply of water are rapidly increasing, we have to make sure that there will always be enough to meet our needs. To find out how this is possible, far-reaching research work is carried out by the Canada Centre for Inland Waters (CCIW).

The results of some of these studies were responsible for the enactment of new water management legislation, such as the limitation of phosphates in household detergents.

According to the folder, the CCIW's findings were also an important factor in the negotiations between Canada and the United States with regard to pollution abatement on the Great Lakes.

The folder also draws attention to a unique program carried out at the CCIW. The centre's sociologists, economists and economic geographers are trying to find out how much the average Canadian is willing to pay, to do and to change his habits to ensure a better environment. The results should be interesting.

Write to: Public Relations Unit, Canada Centre for Inland Waters, P.O. Box 5050, Burlington, Ontario. Please allow at least two-three weeks for delivery.

The centre also invites enquiries concerning its public speaker's service and tours of the Centre.

RED SPLINTER CAN GO TO HELL -IWA LEADER

Communists urging fellow workers to reject a settlement in the 10-day-old coast wood-working industry dispute "can go to hell," an International Woodworkers of America official said Wednesday.

IWA regional president Jack Munro said the new group which calls itself the Woodworkers' Bureau of the Community Party of Canada has urged rejection of the proposal.

GRADS HEAD FOR QUEBEC

Some 16 Claremont senior secondary graduates leave Friday to spend a summer studying French with French Canadian students in several Quebec locations.

Courses, which last from July 3 to Aug. 11, have been financed through a federal secretary of state department grant.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 25-year-old alcoholic admitted in Victoria provincial court Wednesday he stole his girl friend's keepsake diamond rings worth $1,000 in order to get money to buy drinks.

David Marcus Anderson said he pawned the two rings for $60 but then forgot where.

Defence lawyer Brian McAssey called Anderson "a chronic alcoholic" and said a check at a local pawn shop failed to produce the rings.

"He was in a state of toxic amnesia at the time," he said.

The rings belonged to Anderson's girl friend and had been given to her by her father after her mother died.

Judge William Ostler remanded Anderson to July 12 for a presentence report.

Cashing a $45 cheque a month after he had closed his bank account cost a 23-year-old Victoria area man $500 and 18 months probation.

Those were the penalties imposed when Gregory Bryce Smith appeared for sentencing for false pretence.

Smith had pleaded guilty May 8 to passing the cheque at K-Mart April 2.

Police said he was on probation at the time for several

Youth Injured In Car Flip

An 18-year-old Metchosin youth is in satisfactory condition following an accident this morning in which his car flipped and landed on its roof.

Saanich police said Kenneth Corby, 831 Pears, was westbound on the Trans Canada Highway near Admirals, when his small European car crossed the highway, collided with a rock and flipped.

Corby was taken to Victoria General Hospital suffering leg injuries.

Police said the car was a write-off.

Hawaiian Singers Here

A Hawaiian singing group dressed in colorful muu-muus and aloha shirts will give a concert in Victoria Tuesday.

The Hawaiian Ambassador's Singing Group from Haleiwa on the island of Oahu will give the concert — called a Concert of Praise — at the Central Baptist Church, 833 Pandora, at 8 p.m.

The group, composed of about 18 adult singers, will present a variety of musical arrangements in both English and Hawaiian.

The singers are on a West Coast tour from B.C. to the San Francisco area.

proposal because it does not contain a $1 an hour wage increase, a reduction in work weeks, hours or an employer-paid dental plan.

Munro accused the Communist Bureau of "never having done anything constructive. Their usual tactic is to disrupt where and whatever they can."

Meanwhile most of the 32,000 IWA members involved in the dispute are reported back on the job today and voting on the proposed contract by IWA's nine Coast locals is continuing this week, with final tally expected Saturday.

Courtney and Campbell River workers, however, stayed off the job Wednesday and a spokesman for the area said "the guys up here are very dissatisfied with the package. They're letting their employers know of their dissatisfaction by staying off the job until (vote) results are announced."

In Port Alberni workers who stayed off the job Wednesday are expected back at work today.

Man Who Put Arsenic in Workers' Tea Sought

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) Seven refinery workers in nearby Port Credit who suddenly fell ill on the job this spring were poisoned by arsenic in their tea, police said Wednesday.

They said they are seeking "a mentally deranged person" in connection with the poisonings, at first blamed on a gas leak.

Six laboratory employees at the Texaco Canada Ltd. refinery became sick April 1 and were taken to hospital with acute stomach pains.

The story of the poisonings appeared Wednesday in a weekly newspaper, Mississauga Times. Insp. Lawson said later in an interview that police tried to keep the investigation secret so they would not scare off a suspect.

Police questioned about 200 refinery employees after asking union and management officials to keep the case quiet while they conducted their search.

The story of the poisonings appeared Wednesday in a weekly newspaper, Mississauga Times. Insp. Lawson said later in an interview that police tried to keep the investigation secret so they would not scare off a suspect.

Police questioned about 200 refinery employees after asking union and management officials to keep the case quiet while they conducted their search.

Two victims, Rupert Taylor of Toronto and William Payne of Acton, were in hospital for a week. The others were identified as Charles Ross of Toronto, Harvey Barber of Mississauga, and Ronald Bednarz and Daniel Mason, both of Port Credit.

Police were not called until April 6, after a kettle the men used for tea was found to contain a lethal dose of arsenic. Until then, both victims and plant officials had blamed the poisonings on leaking gas.

The tea bag used by Mr. Struen — the seventh victim — was found to contain sodium dichromate crystals, a deadly poison similar to arsenic.

Insp. Lawson said he believes police are "narrowing in on a suspect."

Sub Plane Take Part in Rescue

A plane, a helicopter, a fishing boat and a submarine Wednesday answered the distress call of a fishing vessel in an isolated area of the Island's West Coast.

The two people aboard were saved but their boat was lost.

The call came from the 32-foot Seymour Girl as she was being swept onto the breakers of Jackobson Point on the southeast shore of the Brooks Peninsula.

The Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre dispatched an Argus aircraft from CFB Comox, the Rainbow from Quatsino Sound and requested assistance from the U.S.

The Argus was first to arrive and reported sighting two people safe on shore and the Coast Guard, which sent in a helicopter from Astoria.

The fishing vessel Northern Bounty, with volunteers aboard, headed out of Kyuquot for the scene, pounding through heavy seas, whipped by 40-knot winds.

The boat being pounded to pieces on the rocks. The helicopter later was able to pick up the survivors. The owner of the Seymour Girl, Frank Chidley of Port Alberni, and Louis Macintosh of Tofino were flown back to Tofino.

IN THE SCRUBBABILITY TEST COLOR YOUR WORLD LASTED 2,111 SCRUBS LONGER.

One of the key tests of a really great paint is its ability to stand up to washing and scrubbing.

Years of washing and scrubbing.

Without washing itself away along with next year's smears, stains and fingerprints.

So when an independent laboratory was testing our Color Your World interior latex paints against some of the greatest (and most expensive) latex paints in Canada, we asked them to perform a special test.

Our paint had already passed the Government Specifications Board test — 500 cycles in the washability machine without wearing away. So had CIL's top-of-the-line latex.

So we told the labs, "Leave the paint samples in the machine and go on scrubbing them until they start to wear through!"

What happened?

After 2,669 cycles in the machine, the CIL latex was finished.

Worn through.

The Color Your World latex lasted a total of 4,880 cycles.

Average regular price range:
$9.35-$13.00

That's 2,111 cycles longer, before showing substantial wear.

Now that's pretty amazing performance.

But the most amazing

Always:
$7.69

price? It depends on how you read all the test results, taken together.

Is it the best paint buy in Canada?

We think so.

BOY SURVIVES 'FATAL' SHOT

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — The four-year-old boy's heart and breathing had stopped and doctors working to revive him estimated his chances for survival were "no more than one to two in 100."

But, one week after he accidentally shot himself, William Horton asked a Harbor General Hospital nurse: "When can I go home?"

The .25 calibre bullet pierced William's aorta, ripped through his intestines in seven different places and lodged in his back.

Dr. Michael Peter, a senior resident in surgery who helped save the boy, told a news conference that a gunshot wound which penetrates the aorta is usually fatal.

The aorta is the artery through which blood flows from the heart into the body.

Peter said the chances of a person surviving the injury would be certainly no more than one to two in 100 and quite likely much less.

He said William's survival "represented a lot of good luck along with good care."

Peter said William's brain lacked oxygen for about 15 to 20 minutes, possibly "as long as 25 minutes," and this condition for longer than eight minutes can result in permanent brain damage.

Children seem to tolerate this condition for longer periods than adults, he said.

Health Foods Gave Them Pucker Power

FRESNO, Calif. — Three couples who claim a world record in long-distance kissing attribute their osculatory success to health foods, wheat germ, Vitamin C and honey.

Lip-to-lip, they recorded 120 hours, 1 minute of bussing before parting Wednesday. They said that beat the old record, set in Florida, by six hours.

The kissers were Larry and Dannel Barber, Robert Yuley and Louise Houldridge, David Tornaband and Judith Waurin.

LONDON — Magistrate Evelyn Russel praised a police hero for bravery Wednesday, awarded him $240 and ordered it spent on bones.

King, a five-year-old police Alsatian dog, kept at bay a mentally disturbed man armed with an air rifle until help arrived for his wounded handler.

NAPLES — A 36-year-old woman has given birth to her 16th child — a 19.8 pound boy. Both the mother, Maria Mazzoli, and the baby were reported well.

NEW YORK — Jazz king Duke Ellington, who died last month, left an estimated $200,000 estate, but failed to leave a will to dispose of it. This was disclosed in Manhattan Surrogate's Court Wednesday where Ellington's son, Mercer, has filed a petition seeking the court's authority to administer his father's assets.

The estimated estate value did not include Ellington's interest in copyrights to his musical compositions and royalties that may accrue.

SHOSONE, Idaho — Daredevil Evel Knievel says he plans to jump the 1,400-foot-wide Snake River Canyon on his motorcycle Sept. 8.

But he may need a government permit to carry out the stunt.

Don Sweep, district manager for the bureau of land management, said he understood the 33-year-old Knievel intends to land on federal property.

If so, Sweep said, he would have to clear with the bureau such things as safety and environmental impact.

TURNER TRYING FOR SENATE

Indicted businessman Glen Turner (right) is running for the U.S. Senate. He launched his campaign Wednesday, and acknowledged that in so doing he may be violating a gag rule imposed on him by a federal court.

"I know I'm putting my freedom on the line," said Turner, 38, who is awaiting a second trial on mail fraud charges. The first ended in a mistrial.

The son of a sharecropper who built a fortune with pyramid sales schemes said he would run as a Democrat for the Florida Senate seat now held by Sen. Edward Gurney, a Republican.

The Canada I Love:

Queen Mum

Times News Services

TORONTO — Our country is still the Canada with which I fell in love when I first came here 35 years ago," the Queen Mother said Wednesday.

Speaking at a five-hour ceremonial banquet for the Toronto Scottish and Loyal Societies, hosted by the Toronto Scottish Regiment of which she is colonel-in-chief, she added that Canada is still "a new and developing" nation.

Her Majesty told the 1,000 at the banquet the unity of the Commonwealth finds expression "through such loyal and endearing associations as yours — fraternal, benevolent and military."

Canadians, who cherish links with Britain, help "all Canadians to see the Crown as a symbol of national sovereignty belonging to Canadian citizens of every national origin and ancestry," she said.

Canadians from non-Commonwealth nations are able to choose "their various ways of being Canadians, respecting others, but not forsaking their own traditions," she said.

"They owe much to their own efforts, but they are also sharing an inheritance" which the Loyal Societies help to preserve.

The Queen Mother's seventh day visit to Toronto and Montreal, which ends Monday with Dominion Day celebrations, is her sixth to Canada. She first came in 1939 with her late husband, King George VI.

Earlier, she met with reporters who had covered that first tour. She requested the private reception which preceded an official luncheon and a provincial government garden party at the Ontario Science Centre.

The Queen Mother began her more than 12-hour day of public appearances with a brief stop at the Hospital for Sick Children where a crowd police estimated at 3,000 cheered her.

Today she flies to Montreal for a one-day visit to attend civic and military receptions and present new colors to the Black Watch Royal Highland Regiment. She also is colonel-in-chief of that regiment.

She travelled slowly in an open car much of the day, her lime flowered hat and matching dress clearly visible to the crowds.

But by late evening, the touring car was covered to carry her back to the Windfields, the Toronto estate of industrialist and horseman E.P. Taylor, where she makes her headquarters while here.

Friday morning, Prime Minister Trudeau is to meet her.

Nerve Gas Just Hot Air?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI says it has intercepted nine booby-trapped postcards mailed to the justices of the Supreme Court last week but that preliminary tests indicate a substance purported to be nerve gas is not dangerous.

A group calling itself Aliens for America claimed credit for mailing the cards in an anonymous tape cassette received by United Press International.

On the tape, a man speaking with a thick foreign accent said packets of a deadly nerve gas called "AA4S" had been concealed under the stamps on the cards and mailed to all nine justices as a prelude to a worldwide takeover.

An FBI spokesman confirmed that the postcards had actually been mailed to the justices from some point on the west coast. He said small packets were found under each postage stamp, but that none of the cards reached the justices because the bulky stamps could not be cancelled by machines.

An initial (laboratory) examination indicated they did not contain any noxious substance or nerve gas as alleged in the cassettes," the spokesman said. The FBI declined to identify the substance.

The tape, which was turned over to the FBI, said the postcards had been mailed June 16, and that "each postcard shows the Palm Springs home of entertainer Bob Hope and reads: 'It is the justice of your greatness that made this nation so great. Respectfully, Bob Hope.'

The voice also said time capsules containing the gas had been planted in large cities all over the world to back up the group's ultimatum for the major nations to submit to a new "world government." He claimed that there would be a demonstration on July 5 to show the aliens "can exterminate mankind any time we please."

Among the cities mentioned were Denver, New York, and Miami Beach; Ottawa, London, Paris, Hamburg, West Germany and Leipzig, East Germany, Leningrad, Novosibirsk, Moscow, and Vladivostok in the Soviet Union; Osaka and Tokyo, Hong Kong, and Canberra, Australia.

The tape said 10 grams of the deadly gas had been planted in each city, timed to be released between August and September of this year.

SPY DEATH NOT MURDER

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard detectives investigating the bizarre "locked door" death of a former intelligence agent said today they have ruled out murder.

The skeleton of Sir John Peregrine Heaton-Henniker, the target of four assassination attempts in his cloak-and-dagger career during the Israeli independence war, was found Sunday in a locked room at his suburban London home.

Police said Heaton's body had gone undetected since he vanished nearly three years ago after telling his wife he was going for a drink at the cricket club.

Police sources said Heaton had a history of depression before his death and the note addressed to Lady Margaret said he could not go on. It asked for a simple funeral.

An empty bottle and an apparent suicide not lay near the body, police said, apparently ending a mystery that unfolded Oct. 5, 1971, when Heaton was last seen alive.

Scotland Yard detectives said after questioning the family they considered there were no suspicious circumstances in the death. But they could not commit themselves until the coroner makes a formal ruling after an inquest today.

Heaton, who was 68 when he vanished, served as British security chief in Palestine during the Israeli war in 1948. Four bomb attempts against his life were blamed at the time on Israeli underground groups.

His disappearance touched off an international manhunt by secret services and Interpol, the international police organization.

Not until Heaton's son and heir, Yvo, 20, found a key to the room in his father's desk earlier this week did anyone enter.

Ottawa Dailies Try To Publish Again

OTTAWA (CP) — Unions at Ottawa's two English-language newspapers ordered their members back to work today and, spokesmen at both dailies said they planned to publish.

Wednesday's editions were cancelled because of production slowdowns by union staff but provincial mediator Ray Illing stepped in again with a call for union and management negotiators to meet with him as soon as possible.

Allan Heritage, spokesman for all unions involved in the dispute, said today: "We are ordering our people to get the papers out normally."

No meeting with Illing was expected before tonight at the earliest, however, because the mediator was in Brantford, dealing with a labor dispute at The Expositor.

In Ottawa, Wednesday, was the third one-day cancellation of publication by The Citizen and The Journal in a continuing dispute.

The newspapers said in a joint statement they decided not to publish after it became evident that the newspapers could not meet printing deadlines.

The unions' last demand was for immediate wage in-

Provincial Police Training Outlined

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new system of training police recruits in British Columbia that should be in operation by the beginning of 1975 was outlined Wednesday by provincial police Commissioner Bob Stewart.

Stewart was speaking at a meeting between the provincial police commission, which officially starts operation today, and representatives from B.C.'s 12 municipal police commissions.

Municipal police commissions will be called police boards in future while the provincial organization will be called a police commission.

Stewart said a recruit will have about a week to become oriented with his home department. This will be followed by a course at the provincial police academy lasting 10 to 14 weeks.

Two Tons Pot Seized

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Dr. Arthur Carr and Angelita Carr, of no fixed addresses, were charged Wednesday with importing an illegal drug into Canada following seizure earlier in the day of two tons of material, believed to be marijuana, found in Shore-side cave about 25 miles south of here.

Campbell River Home Helped

A grant of $241,000 under the Elderly Citizens Housing Aid Act was made Wednesday to the John Perkins Memorial Housing Society in Campbell River.

The provincial government aid is for 41 additional units to accommodate 48 residents in self-contained apartments at a project with a total value of $723,000. Last year the society erected a 20-unit project.

by Marilyn Belanger and Terry Hildebrandt at 4:22 this morning, and had left by 5:54. Cause of the fire, which resulted in $10,000 damage, is still under investigation.

Arbutus Winners

Top boy athletes at Arbutus junior high this year were John Philip and Kevin Kendall.

Top girl athlete was Cindy Smith, who also won the French book prize.

Kendall also won the president's trophy, along with John Bertoia. The leadership cup went to Doug Patterson and the citizenship cup to Nancy Sheppard.

Scholarship awards went to Mark Salter, Bill Myles, Nancy Sheppard and Diana Rose, and citizenship awards to Paul Bower and Carol Fee.

Dan Collier won the Tom Snider Memorial Award for best math student, Martha O'Brien the Spanish book prize, Cathy MacCauley the typing book prize, and Thirl Murphy and Gail Thompson typing speed certificates.

Academic award winners in Grade 10 were Rick Shenton, Sally Marr and Lorna Dosso; in Grade 9 Cindy Dosso, Sheryl Lee and Cam Bailey; and Alison Campbell.

New Port Eyed At Duke Point

NANAIMO — A major forest products terminal at Duke Point would cost about $20 million if the project is approved and construction begins next year, says port manager John Dunham.

The new port would bring revenues of about $2 million per year, he estimated.

Award Winners At St. Margaret's

Joanne Reith and Jane Vrooman were this year's winners of St. Margaret's School's most valued award, the Robertson Salver for service to the school.

Vrooman also received the trip to the school for the sportsperson, and Robin McIntosh received the Margaret Barton scholarship and pin for scholarship, citizenship and endeavour.

Top Grade 12 student Terry Lo received the Molson Cup, with runners-up Carrie Chan and Diane Turner getting the Fleit Cup.

The Clack Cup for progress and achievement in commerce went to Karen Lee, the Alliance Francaise prize to

The Protection of Privacy Act

The Protection of Privacy Act, which was passed by Parliament and given Royal Assent on January 1, 1974, is effective June 30, 1974. Among the amendments that the Act makes to the Criminal Code are the following:

Possession

178.18 (1) Every one who possesses or purchases any electromagnetic, acoustic, mechanical or other device or any component thereof knowing that the design thereof renders it primarily useful for surreptitious interception of private communications is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment for two years.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply to (a) a police officer or police constable in possession of a device or component described in subsection (1) in the course of his employment;

(b) a person in possession of such a device or component for the purpose of using it in an interception made in accordance with an authorization;

(c) an officer or servant of Her Majesty in right of Canada or a member of the Canadian Forces in possession of such a device or component in the course of his duties as such an officer, servant or member, as the case may be; and

(d) any other person in possession of such a device or component under the authority of a licence issued by the Solicitor-General of Canada.

Interception

178.19 (1) Every one who, by means of an electromagnetic, acoustic, mechanical or other device, wilfully intercepts a private communication is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment for five years.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply to (a) a person who has the consent to intercept, express or implied, of the originator of the private communication or of the person intended by the originator thereof to receive it; every one who, without the express consent of the originator thereof or of the person intended by the originator thereof to receive it, wilfully

(b) a person who intercepts a private communication in accordance with an authorization or any person who in good faith aids in any way a person whom he has reason to believe is acting with any such authorization;

(c) a person engaged in providing a telephone, telegraph or other communication service to the public who intercepts a private communication

(d) if such interception is necessary for the purpose of providing such service;

(e) in the course of service observing or random monitoring necessary for the purpose of mechanical or service quality control checks, or

(f) if such interception is necessary to protect the person's rights of property, directly related to providing such service;

(g) if such interception is necessary to correct subnormal hearing of the user to better than normal hearing;

(h) if such interception is necessary to record or acquire a communication or acquire the substance, meaning or purport thereof;

(i) if such interception is necessary to obtain private legal advice on the matter. Applications for a licence to possess a device should be made to

MORE SEATS FOR HOUSE?

A commission to revamp the province's electoral boundaries will be named before the end of the year.

Premier Dave Barrett said today suburban areas have had "fantastic growth" and require examination.

He said the study could result in an additional four or five seats in the present 55-seat legislature.

Barrett did not name specific areas where he thought there should be added representation, but he said there will have to be a change before the next election.

Mass Tel Walk-Out

Management personnel manned the switchboards today as close to 10,000 workers at B.C. Telephone Co. walked off the job across the province, including about 700 in Victoria.

Company spokesman Glyn Jones said in Victoria that local phone service will not be interrupted but there are delays in operator-dialed calls and only essential phone installations will be undertaken.

He urged phone users calling long-distance to direct dial whenever possible.

The labor dispute stems from suspension of a woman employee in Vancouver for refusing to train a staff member in her job without getting extra pay.

The walkout began on a small scale Monday when about 30 workers in the company's main office in Vancouver did not come to work to protest the suspension. It spread to Vancouver Island and the interior Tuesday but all workers were on the job Wednesday while company and union met on the issue.

The company proposed a federal mediator be asked to decide whether the dispute should be submitted to binding arbitration but the union insists the entire dispute be put to a mediator.

Earlier today no further talks had been scheduled but the company said it is considering legal action to end the walkout.

Robert Donnelly, president of the Federation of Telephone Workers of B.C., told the Times from Vancouver today there is only one job description in the company — group 6 — which includes job training and the woman suspended is in group 4.

A difference of about $6 a day in pay is involved, he said.

Jones said the suspended employee was not being asked to do job training but to give information about a job, in the same way one employee will familiarize another with his job so it can be done while he is on vacation, for example.

Donnelly said the company wanted binding arbitration because the worst that could happen is it would have to live up to the contract. The federation asked for a mediator in hopes he could bring a fresh approach to solving the differences.

Another company spokesman described the walkout as a "flagrant contravention" of the union-company agreement, which does not expire until the end of the year.

BALLOT BOXES will tell the federal election tale after polling booths close July 8. This week Victoria returning officer Mrs. Eleanor M. Allan is preparing the 281 vote receptacles for their role in the riding.

Free Passengers Urged on Ferries

Drastic changes in B.C. Ferry Authority's car-passenger service between Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland are recommended in an 80-page special study commissioned by the highway department.

The study includes a proposal for free passenger service, including public transit vehicles, and higher fares for automobiles to discourage travellers from taking vehicles across Georgia Strait.

The study was done by the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control and the University of B.C. Transportation Centre last August based on interviews with 42,291 travellers waiting at Tsawwassen, Swartz Bay, Horseshoe Bay and Departure Bay terminals during the summer peak.

Long lineups and lengthy waiting to get aboard ferries would be reduced, the report said if more passengers and fewer cars, campers and motor homes used the ferries, provided there were better public transportation facilities.

The highways department is responsible for ferry terminal construction. The report was released in Vancouver and has not been formally presented to the ferry authority, which will have to be consulted if major changes are to be made.

Last month, Transport Minister Robert Strachan, who is responsible for ferries, said there would be no free ferries because people would jam ferries for free cruises. Some deterrent charge is essential he said. Fare is now $2 per passenger and $5 per car.

The transportation study cost $25,000 and was done by students under direction of the U.B.C. centre and SPEC.

A spokesman for Strachan said he expected the minister to comment when he returns from a vacation in the interior.

Additional stress on B.C. highways and ferries is expected when the northern highway system is improved, said Loren Doll of the UBC centre.

At present, about one-third of the 230,000 vehicles using the main ferry run are from outside the province and more than half the total — including campers and trailers — carry fewer than three people.

About one-third of those who take their cars on ferries do so for convenience, it was found.

If there are new terminals built at Gabriola Island and in the Richmond area there could be 100,000 more vehicles on the Malahat highway in July and August.

Up to 100,000 would be using the Gabriola service, destroying the island with noise and

LEWIS GETS OFFER HE COULD REFUSE

THUNDER BAY (CP) — A man with a wheelbarrow made David Lewis an offer he was quick to refuse Wednesday night.

"Hey, David," the man called as the New Democratic Party leader walked near a horse barn at the Canadian Lakehead Exhibition grounds, "here's some of the stuff you've been spreading — we make it right here."

The wheelbarrow carried a load of hay garnished with a mound of fresh horse manure. Mr. Lewis grinned and walked away, replying: "I think you've got the wrong man."

Meanwhile, in Magog, Que., Tory leader Stanfield claimed that Canada is only months away from a recession and in Digby, N.S., Prime Minister Trudeau pledged that, if re-elected his government will re-establish an independent ministry of fisheries. Full reports, Page 13.

more adults who fenced the stolen property.

The juveniles are between 12 and 16 years old and all from the middle-class Kitsilano area.

Detective Leon Bourque, who has been working on the case for more than two months, said the gang chose only expensive-looking homes to break into.

Twenty-nine were in the well-to-do Point Grey area, two in North Vancouver and one in West Vancouver.

Police said Wednesday the children were given shopping lists of specific goods to steal.

Police said at least 15 boys and two girls were involved in the ring, directed by 10 or one of the victims was Attorney-General Alex Macdonald who lives in Point Grey. Ten thefts from cars were also involved.

The gang started operating in late February, police said, working in teams of two to four boys.

They knocked on the door of a house and if anyone answered, they would pretend to be selling raffle tickets or newspaper subscriptions.

If no one answered, they would smash in a front window through which they could open the door.

Once inside, they gathered up stereos, cameras, tape recorders and coin collections.

Bourque said occasionally they went on a rampage, smashing wine and pop bottles against walls, pouring milk on rugs, slicing up furniture and slashing paintings.

Police estimate the gang did at least $3,000 in damage and got away with $10,000 worth of valuables, $3,500 of which has been recovered.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police have broken up a juvenile theft ring that specialized in stealing-to-order.

Youth squad detectives blamed the ring for at least 32 break-ins in a territory stretching from the University of British Columbia campus to West Vancouver.

Smiles, Flags Greet Nixon in Moscow

Times News Services

MOSCOW (UPI) — A smiling President Nixon flew in to a flag-waving, hand-pumping welcome from the Soviet big three today, then joined them in a mile-a-minute motorcade to the Kremlin for tough summitry on slowing the nuclear arms race.

They sped past an estimated 10,000 spectators, covering the 22 miles in 20 minutes.

After a brief reception, Nixon began his first private meeting with Communist Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev.

Residential aides said the warm greeting was an indication of the extent of detente.

They said a more significant sampling of the mood would come later during toasts at a state dinner hosted by Brezhnev.

A U.S. official aboard the "Spirit of '76" jetliner during the three-hour flight from Brussels said Nixon had turned down the latest Soviet proposal on curtailing multiple warhead missiles and, therefore, prospects for a full agreement during the weeklong visit were slim.

Even so, the beginning of Nixon's second visit to the Soviet Union in three years bore marked contrast to his previous arrival, in May, 1972, when Brezhnev stayed away from the airport reception.

This time all three leaders — Brezhnev, Premier Alexei Kosygin, and President Nikolai Podgorny — were at the foot of the ramp when Nixon and his wife Pat emerged into the bright sunlight, smiling and waving.

Soviet security police, meanwhile, arrested Wednesday another organizer of an international science seminar planned for next week in what appeared to be a move to silence all Jewish protesters before Nixon's arrival.

STRIKE SNARLS MONTREAL

MONTREAL (CP) — Thousands of workers walked, pedaled bicycles, hitch-hiked or rode taxis to their jobs today when a strike tied up city and subway transportation.

Massive traffic snarls occurred on expressways in the city and bridges leading to the downtown core because of the thousands of extra cars being driven to workers' offices and plants.

Bus drivers, subway operators, ticket sellers and information agents with the Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission (MUCTC) did not appear for the morning shift after strike call was issued by the 3,200-member union Wednesday night.

The men were to meet in an end-arena today, a union spokesman said.

Paul Forget, business agent for the men, said about 700 of the 3,200 met Wednesday night and voted to walk off the job in retaliation for a decision by the transit commission to withhold part of the salary of bus drivers, who refused Tuesday and Wednesday to cross picket lines set up at two depots by striking subway security guards.

Management personnel man the switchboard at B.C. Tel after operators walked off the job today

RAIN HAVOC IN EDMONTON

EDMONTON (CP) — Almost three inches of rain fell in Edmonton Wednesday, causing hundreds of flooded basements and, leaving some streets under two inches of water as sewers backed up.

The rain began early in the day and 2.98 inches had fallen by early evening. Gradual clearing was predicted today.

Fire department officials blamed the heavy rain for blowing out a switchbox at a 12-suite apartment building in centre city which caused a fire in underground circuits.

No injuries were reported.

Work Style Threatened

North Saanich municipality's whole method of work will be threatened if its six outside workers don't relax demands for new job classifications, Mayor Paul Grieve said today.

If those job classifications are non-negotiable then our method of work is really on the chopping block," Grieve said.

The Saanich agreement

gives each outside worker a clearly defined job, such as laborer or truck driver.

In North Saanich, said Grieve, "we rely on the versatility of our crew to do a whole variety of work." A truck driver is expected to put down blacktop and to do some laboring as well.

If the Saanich classifications were accepted, he said, a North Saanich employee working to rule could refuse to do anything but his designated job.

Grieve said that at an earlier meeting between the union and North Saanich council's negotiating committee, the union had shown willingness to reach a compromise on the issue. But at the last meeting, two weeks ago, they again demanded the Saanich classifications.

Next meeting is Friday morning.

"They have to pull back from the rigidity of the Saanich approach," Grieve said. Wages are not at issue, he said.

Ferry Report

A priority system of ferry space should be adopted for regular ferry users as an alternative to the problem, the report said.

It agreed with Strachan on introduction of a reservations system which the authority is having studied by another group.

B.C. Ferries lost $10 million last year — about the same as the Vancouver Island economy gained from ferry users. About $4.5 million

'GUARD DUTY' DELAYS FERRY

A capsized pleasure craft held up the Queen of Victoria for about an hour and 15 minutes.

A B.C. Ferries spokesman said the Queen was delayed during its 4 p.m. trip Tuesday from Tsawwassen to Swartz Bay because ferry officials spotted the 20-foot craft in Georgia Strait about 6 1/2 miles north of Active Pass.

The ferry, which arrived at Swartz Bay at 7:15 p.m., stayed with the craft until the Queen of Saanich arrived to take over the watch.

The craft, with two men aboard, was taken in tow to Tsawwassen by another pleasure boat.

Chased Out Of Business

LONDON (UPI) — Probably the only manufacturer of chastity belts in the world, the Halstead, Essex, firm of Anne Hugessen has been placed into liquidation by creditors.

Officials said the company's failure has nothing to do with the permissive society.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Striking brewery workers at two Winnipeg plants have reached agreement on a new contract and are to begin returning to work immediately.

In a joint statement issued today by the two breweries and the United Brewery and Soft Drink Workers it was reported that a settlement giving the workers a pay increase of 77 cents an hour in a one-year contract had been approved. The contract also calls for improved fringe ben-

nounced. The workers now earn an average of $5 an hour.

Spokesmen for Labatt's Manitoba Brewery Ltd. and Kiewel-Pelissier Breweries Ltd. said the workers were to return to work immediately but it would take one or two days to sort out timetables and other detailed matters. The strike began June 2.

A third strike at Uncle Ben's Breweries Manitoba Ltd. continues with no indication of an early settlement.

Don't Knock the Nuclear It's Good for Business

Another thing that just chokes you with pride in this free and independent Canada is our nuclear policy.

Why, only last week our glorious leader stamped his dainty foot quite petulantly when it was learned that France and China had tested nuclear explosives.

No need for it at all, said Pierre Elliot Trudeau crossly and went on: "We are fearful that an expansion of the nuclear explosives club represents a severe setback for the efforts of mankind to control the spread of this wasteful, destructive, terrifying technology."

A perfectly darling speech, true, but if Pierre Elliot has any feelings, one way or the other, about a concrete blockhouse, just 150 miles north of Victoria, that's crammed with that wasteful, destructive, terrifying hardware, they're not for us to know.

Newspapers across the country pontificated sternly when India, with Canada's unwitting help, held a similar test. We promptly cut off most of our aid to them.

But it was a one-day story, with little or no editorial comment, when it was revealed that nuclear war-heads are still kept at the ready at the Comox Canadian Forces Base — not experimental, test explosives for peaceful purposes, you understand, but sophisticated war-heads ready for combat.

We continue, in short, to be the harlots to the nuclear pimps of the western world, but you'd be hard-pressed to get more than a handful of Canadians who care enough to protest.

The area's leading hot-liner can hardly keep his lines clear of outraged adherents in a paranoiac, continuing attack against an American social worker he seeks to deport, a poor slob whose main crime seems to be that he's on the B.C. welfare rolls, but he breathes not a word about an indeterminate number of Americans who, within fallout range of his office, play nursemaid to the most obscene instruments of war yet devised.

There isn't a Canadian, I daresay, who'd buy a used car from Richard Milhaus Nixon, yet, as commander-in-chief of all the American forces, his word is all that's needed to activate nuclear missiles on Canadian soil. And do we care? Hell, no. We care more about the price of the beef that goes into our bellies.

Some nine years ago, when I essayed my one only venture outside the newspaper business, as a ban-the-bomb marcher in Comox, I endured the jeers of the Comox servicemen and business men whose harlotry was very direct — the nuclear base was either good for their careers or good for local business.

A couple of weeks ago, when the Comox MLA, Karen Sanford, arranged a protest demonstration at the base, the counter-demonstration was only too predictably the same. One eye-witness there tells me, however, that now the gun-ho sons of servicemen were there to smear Mrs. Sanford and her pathetically small group of supporters as Communists, just as we were smeared nearly a decade ago.

Not much else had changed, either.

"Who the hell's trying to stir that old bogeyman up again?" asked the Comox mayor who, I'm told, is ex-air-force.

"There's no concern locally," said the Comox base commander. "I don't know why it's an issue all of a sudden."

The funny thing is that it wasn't Karen who made it an issue again, but a Conservative member of Parliament from Victoria, Allan McKinnon who, having elicited the admission that the nuclear war-heads were still there, promptly crawled back into the wood-work of the Rideau Club or wherever it is that Conservative members hide when there seems an issue to be faced.

That put the ball in Mrs. Sanford's court, not by her own choice, but as the NDP MLA for Comox, and, though it is sure to cost her votes, she did not dodge the issue.

Karen's objection to the nuclear weaponry on our soil is simply that it destroys Canada's credibility as part of a third force in the world, that so long as we kiss America's behind (though she does not put it this uncouthly) we will not be heard in the peace councils of the world.

Certainly, so long as we play our harlot's role in NORAD we have no more voice than any American state. How can our glorious leader put the knock on China or France or India when we carry on as willing or apathetic custodians of these vicious weapons?

But there's an even loonier, senseless side to this affair. The fact is that the nuclear weaponry stored at Comox is now totally obsolete and represents only a token of our military subservience to the Americans.

These war-heads, known as the Genie breed, are for air-to-air missiles meant to stop bombing planes before they reach the United States. Now, in the age of inter-continental missiles, they are as outmoded as the bow and arrow and there isn't a military expert, even in the Pentagon, who bothers to justify them.

Even Lester Pearson who, unaccountably, authorized them in the first place, in 1963, said they would be removed "at the earliest opportunity," though his predecessors have made not the slightest gesture in that direction.

Obviously, they and the American technicians who remain to activate them, are at Comox, at Bagotville, Quebec and Chatham, Nova Scotia, only as a disgusting symbol to remain the world that we, Canadians are quite willing to remain as satellites and the last remaining, unquestioning friends of the U.S.A.

Why, even our defence minister, James Richardson, has said soothily that "they are never airborne." That being the case why in God's name do we continue to provide a sanctuary for them with no more than a murmur of protest?

Oh, I tell you, it just chokes you up with pride in a free and independent Canada.

Symphony Faces Phase-Out: Gati

The Victoria symphony orchestra is sliding deeper and deeper into debt.

If the downward spiral isn't halted music director Lazlo Gati says the orchestra may be phased out of existence.

If 1973 there was a deficit of $33,711, this year it's $45,185.

These annual deficits could go on snowballing," he said. "I don't want to end up in the middle of the season, saying to the orchestra, sorry no pay cheques, no concert this week."

Gati contends the orchestra's image is not what it should be in the community and suggests those who solicit funds for it may not be using the right approach.

Gati said the orchestra received "very little" from the provincial government's B.C. Cultural Fund while other groups' grants had been tripled.

In a report submitted by symphony president Miss Madge Ronahan this week it was stated that only $26,000 had been collected in a $113,000 development campaign launched in April.

Vancouver businessmen had been twice as generous as their Victoria counterparts in

Deported!

The wife of a man ordered deported Wednesday had no idea he had a criminal record nor that he was wanted in connection with a murder and armed robbery in the United States.

For three years she and her husband, Stephen Van Eyck, lived on a small farm near Sooke. Six months ago they had their first child.

Their life together came to a sudden end when Van Eyck admitted to immigration officials at a special hearing.

held here Wednesday his real name is Kenneth Anthony Zadel.

An American, born in Chicago 38 years ago, Zadel has been sought by the FBI since Jan. 26, 1971, for unlawful interstate flight to avoid prosecution for murder and attempted armed robbery in New Jersey. He was considered armed and dangerous.

But that's not the reason for his deportation.

Special inquiry officer Brian Cross who conducted

She Didn't Know Her Husband

Wanted for Murder in U.S.

the immigration hearing said Zadel was being deported because he was a prohibited person when he entered Canada.

Cross said Zadel was prohibited because he had been convicted of "crimes of moral turpitude" — auto larceny in 1952 and armed robbery in 1959, both in his native Chicago.

He has been held on a Canadian immigration warrant since June 15.

The warrant was issued five days after his appearance in Victoria provincial court when he was charged, as Van Eyck, with breaking and entering Buckerfield's Ltd. and stealing a safe containing $13,000.

He was subsequently charged with possession of a restricted weapon, a .38 calibre revolver, which police say they found in his Sooke home after his arrest June 9.

His true identity was discovered from fingerprints taken at the time.

Cross said Zadel hitchhiked across the border at Douglas near Blaine in 1970. He told immigration officials then he intended to stay in Canada only about two weeks and was not asked his name.

His movements since that time are sketchy. It is believed he settled first in Sidney and then moved to a cabin near Point No Point, between Sooke and Jordan River.

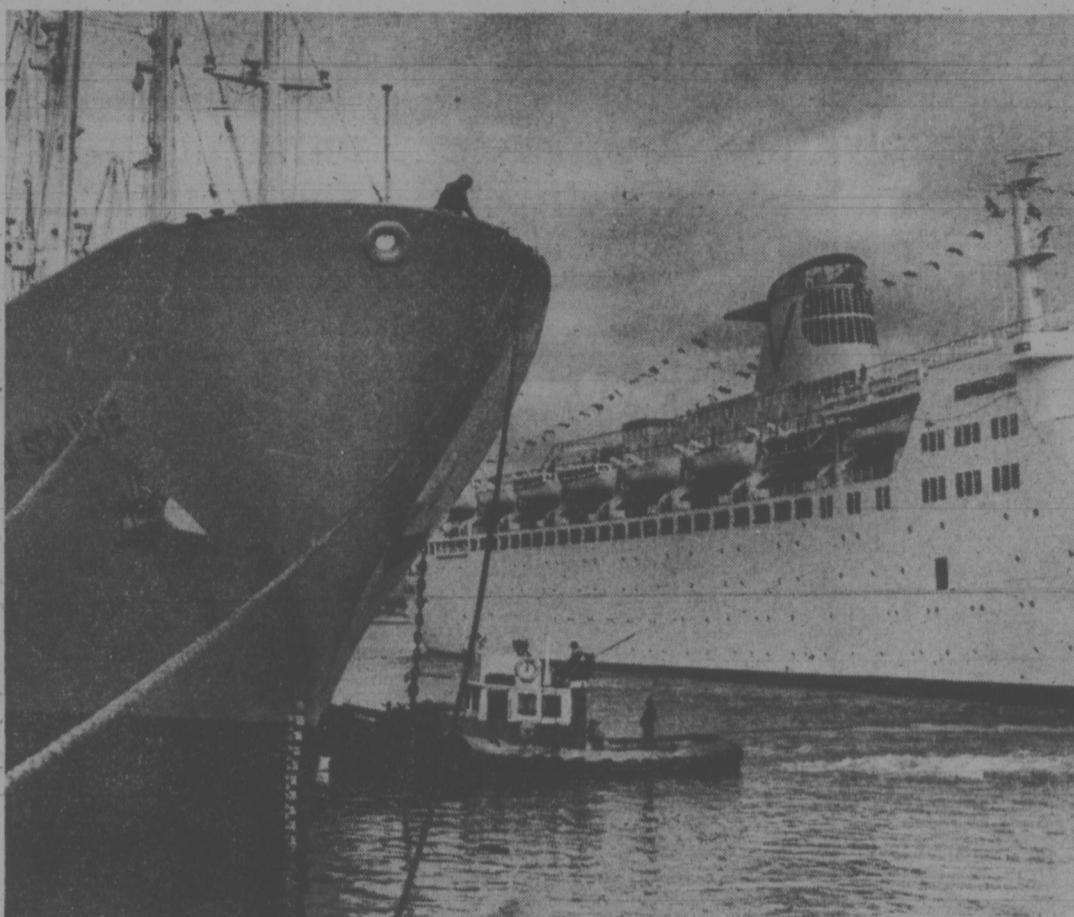

He got married — to an American woman, a landed immigrant in Canada — and, according to one source, worked for a time with Sooke Forest Products. His wife is a noted weaver, acknowledged one of the best in Canada, and has been hired to instruct at the Lester Pearson College of the Pacific when it opens.

Zadel was represented at the hearing by Victoria lawyer David Lissom. He did not contest the immigration board's findings.

Cross said it will likely be about a week before Zadel is turned over to U.S. immigration officials here.

"He (Zadel) wants to return to the U.S. to clear up the charges against him," Lissom said.

Appeal Court Upholds Sealand Suit Award

The B.C. appeal court has allowed two appeals and dismissed two others arising from a civil action 18 months ago which saw Sealand at Oak Bay marina awarded $62,230 in damages.

The net effect of the appeal judgement is to reduce the award won by Sealand to $57,715 and to make both Ocean Construction Supplies Ltd. and Robert C. McHaffie Ltd. liable for it.

The original lawsuit arose after addition of a special lightweight concrete to the display tanks at Sealand failed to increase the buoyancy of the vessel as intended. The work was done late in 1969.

Sealand sued Ocean Construction Supplies Ltd. which supplied the zonolite concrete as well as naval architects Robert C. McHaffie Ltd., McHaffie himself and Frank Browne Ltd., swimming pool equipment suppliers.

In a trial late in 1972 the suits against McHaffie and his firm and the Browne company were dismissed but Sealand was awarded the $62,200, with Ocean Equipment Supplies Ltd. being found liable.

Subsequently Sealand appealed dismissal of its action against McHaffie and his company as well as the costs award of Frank Browne Ltd. and Ocean Equipment and Supplies Ltd. appealed the finding it is liable and the amount of damages.

The appeal court judgement finds Ocean Equipment and the McHaffie firm both liable but reduces the award to $57,715. It dismisses the appeal that McHaffie himself is liable and provides a new formula for division of costs.

Acting for Sealand were Louis Lindholm and Peter Gibson, Counsel for Ocean Construction Supplies Ltd., were D. M. Gordon, QC, and R. B. Hutchison and A. N. Patterson represented McHaffie and his firm.

N.B. Only Place To Buy Bricklin

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadians will get their chance to own the new Bricklin sports car, but they will have to place their orders with dealers in New Brunswick.

Malcolm Bricklin, the self-made millionaire who initiated the project, said Wednesday that the Bricklin will be available to Canadians sometime in the fall through dealers, yet to be named, in the province where the car will be mass-produced.

The New Brunswick and federal governments have invested $8 million in Bricklin Canada Ltd., mainly through guarantees for loans.

The two-seat sports car with special safety features will be produced at Saint John, N.B., primarily for export to the United States.

All indications have been that it will be sold only through 200 dealers in a dozen northeastern states.

But there has been some criticism that Canadians were building a car for Americans only, and using Canadian tax-money to do it.

NOT YET READY

But New Brunswick Premier Richard Hatfield, who has staked his reputation and possibly his political career on the venture, said the work force at the Saint John assembly plant still is in the process of training to handle mass-production.

Initially, plans call for production of 1,000 cars a month.

I'm convinced, and I know Malcolm Bricklin is, that they can produce that amount," Hatfield said.

"Every industry we've ever had come to the province have had all kinds of startup problems. I think we'll have startup problems with this project as well."

"But the fact of the matter is that now the market is there. And that's terribly important in a new investment. The market will demand that we solve those problems."

Bricklin himself has announced that the cars will start rolling off the assembly line in late July and U.S. dealers will have their cars early in August.

By the end of September, there will be a minimum of 1,000 cars produced a month, he said.

COST IDENTICAL

The cars will be available to New Brunswick dealers at the same retail price — $6,495 — announced Tuesday in New York, plus whatever taxes Canadians pay on new cars.

But if a Canadian living in Toronto, Montreal or Vancouver wants to buy a Bricklin he will have to do it through a New Brunswick dealer.

MORE SEATS FOR HOUSE?

A commission to revamp the province's electoral boundaries will be named before the end of the year.

Premier Dave Barrett said today suburban areas have had "fantastic growth" and require examination.

He said the study could result in an additional four or five seats in the present 55-seat legislature.

Barrett did not name specific areas where he thought there should be added representation, but he said there will have to be a change before the next election.

Mass Tel Walk-Out

Management personnel manned the switchboards today as close to 10,000 workers at B.C. Telephone Co. walked off the job across the province, including about 700 in Victoria.

Company spokesman Glyn Jones said in Victoria that local phone service will not be interrupted but there are delays in operator-dialed calls and only essential phone installations will be undertaken.

He urged phone users calling long-distance to direct dial wherever possible.

The labor dispute stems from suspension of a woman employee in Vancouver for refusing to train a staff member in her job without getting extra pay.

The walkout began on a small scale Monday when about 30 workers in the company's main office in Vancouver did not come to work to protest the suspension. It spread to Vancouver Island and the interior Tuesday but all workers were on the job Wednesday while company and union met on the issue.

The company proposed a federal mediator be asked to decide whether the dispute should be submitted to binding arbitration but the union insists the entire dispute be referred to a mediator.

Earlier today no further talks had been scheduled but the company said it is considering legal action to end the walkout.

Robert Donnelly, president of the Federation of Telephone Workers of B.C., told the Times from Vancouver today there is only one job description in the company — group 6 — which includes job training and the woman suspended is in group 4.

A difference of about $6 a day in pay is involved, he said.

Jones said the suspended employee was not being asked to do job training but to give information about a job, in the same way one employee will familiarize another with his job so it can be done while he is on vacation, for example.

Donnelly said the company wanted binding arbitration because the worst that could happen is it would have to live up to the contract. The federation asked for a mediator in hopes he could bring a fresh approach to solving the differences.

Another company spokesman described the walkout as a "flagrant contravention" of the union-company agreement, which does not expire until the end of the year.

BALLOT BOXES will tell the federal election tale after polling booths close July 8. This week Victoria returning officer Mrs. Eleanor M. Allan is preparing the 281 vote receptacles for their role in the riding.

Free Passengers Urged on Ferries

Drastic changes in B.C. Ferry Authority's car-passenger service between Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland are recommended in an 80-page special study commissioned by the highways department.

They include a proposal for free passenger service, including public transit vehicles, and higher fares for automobiles to discourage travellers from taking vehicles across Georgia Strait.

The study was done by the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control and the University of B.C. Transportation Centre last August based on interviews with 42,291 travellers waiting at Tsawwassen, Swartz Bay, Horseshoe Bay and Departure Bay terminals during the summer peak.

Long lineups and lengthy waiting to get aboard ferries would be reduced, the report said, if more passengers and fewer cars, campers and motor homes used the ferries, provided there were better public transportation facilities across Georgia Strait.

tion Centre last August based on interviews with 42,291 travellers waiting at Tsawwassen, Swartz Bay, Horseshoe Bay and Departure Bay terminals during the summer peak.

has not been formally presented to the ferry authority, which will have to be consulted if major changes are to be made.

Last month, Transport Minister Robert Strachan, who is responsible for ferries, said there would be no free ferries because people would jam ferries for free cruises. Some deterrent charge is essential he said. Fare is now $2 per passenger and $5 per car.

The transportation study cost $25,000 and was done by students under direction of the U.B.C. centre and SPEC.

A spokesman for Strachan said he expected the minister to comment when he returns from a vacation in the interior.

Additional stress on B.C. highways and ferries is expected when the northern highway system is improved, said Loren Doll of the UBC centre.

At present, about one-third of the 230,000 vehicles using the main ferry run are from outside the province and more than half the total — including campers and trailers — carry fewer than three people.

About one-third of those who take their cars on ferries do so for convenience, it was found.

If there are new terminals built at Gabriola Island and in the Richmond area there could be 100,000 more vehicles on the Malahat highway in July and August.

Up to 100,000 would be using the Gabriola service, destroying the island with noise and

LEWIS GETS OFFER HE COULD REFUSE

THUNDER BAY (CP) — A man with a wheelbarrow made David Lewis an offer he was quick to refuse Wednesday night.

The wheelbarrow carried a load of hay garnished with a mound of fresh horse manure. Mr. Lewis grinned and walked away, replying: "I think you've got the wrong man."

Meanwhile, in Magog, Que., Tory leader Stanfield claimed that Canada is only months away from a recession and in Digby, N.S., Prime Minister Trudeau pledged that, if re-elected his government will re-establish an independent ministry of fisheries. Full reports, Page 13.

Teenage Thieves Stole-to-Order

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police have broken up a juvenile theft ring that specialized in stealing-to-order.

Youth squad detectives blamed the ring for at least 32 break-ins in a territory stretching from the University of British Columbia campus to West Vancouver.

Police said Wednesday the children were given shopping lists of specific goods to steal.

Police said at least 15 boys and two girls were involved in the ring, directed by 10 or more adults who fenced the stolen property.

The juveniles are between 12 and 16 years old and all from the middle-class Kitsilano area.

Detective Leon Bourque, who has been working on the case for more than two months, said the gang chose only expensive-looking homes to break into.

Twenty-nine were in the well-to-do Point Grey area, two in North Vancouver and one in West Vancouver.

One of the victims was Attorney-General Alex Macdonald who lives in Point Grey. Ten thefts from cars were also involved.

The gang started operating in late February, police said, working in teams of two to four boys.

They knocked on the door of a house and if anyone answered, they would pretend to be selling raffle tickets or newspaper subscriptions.

If no one answered, they would smash in a front window through which they could open the door.

Once inside, they gathered up stereos, cameras, tape recorders and coin collections.

Bourque said occasionally they went on a rampage, smashing wine and pop bottles against walls, pouring milk on rugs, slicing up furniture and slashing paintings.

Police estimate the gang did at least $3,000 in damage and got away with $10,000 worth of valuables, $3,500 of which has been recovered.

$500,000 Bill For City?

By PAUL MOSS

Times Staff

Unless an early promise of help comes from the provincial government, Victoria tax-payers could be liable to meet bills totalling close to $500,000 for the care of welfare patients in private hospitals city officials said today.

The warning comes in the wake of last week's ruling by the Supreme Court of Canada that the city of Victoria must pay $55,158 to Aberdeen private hospital, 1450 Hillside, for the city's share of increased payments up to May of 1972.

The warning comes in the wake of last week's ruling by the Supreme Court of Canada that the city of Victoria must pay $55,158 to Aberdeen private hospital, 1450 Hillside, for the city's share of increased payments up to May of 1972.

The city had appealed the claim not on principle but to contest the actual amount, city solicitor Jakob de Villiers said.

But now claims from two other Victoria hospitals — Glengarry and Glenwarren — that have been stalled pending the outcome of the long legal hassle have to be recognized. And that total involves another $367,471.

However, city manager Jim Bramley said there is no "great concern" over the matter, as Victoria is reasonably confident that the provincial government will acknowledge its responsibility to help meet the retroactive costs.

The argument dates back to the late 1960s which the former Social Credit government set a limit on municipal liability for payments to private hospitals and rest homes for the care of welfare patients.

Municipalities were sued, rather than the provincial government, because under a section of the Municipal Act every municipality with a population over a certain figure is required to make provision for its "poor and destitute," de Villiers said.

He said although the provincial government apparently assumed all responsibility for welfare services in September 1973, that section still remains as an "anomaly" in the legislation so that the hospitals "are continuing to sue the city rather than the government."

The note said: "The United States has agreed to discuss Canadian proposals for alternative supply routes to Cherry Point and Puget Sound refineries. This could mean that oil tankers from Alaska will not be passing Victoria.

A five-page diplomatic note sent to Ottawa from Washington bowed to Canadian demands for consultations on tanker traffic on Puget Sound. In return, the U.S. wants talks to include environmental dangers on the East Coast and Great Lakes.

In effect, the U.S. is suggesting that if oil-bearing tankers from Alaska cause concern to Canada, then the Canadian government should be prepared to discuss U.S. anxiety about oil destined for the Atlantic provinces and Montreal refineries.

A series of new deep-water ports and on-shore refineries in the Atlantic provinces promise an increasing amount of tanker traffic along the east coast of North America.

The U.S. also chafes at the substantial volume of oil delivered at Portland, Me., by tankers from Venezuela and the Arab states, almost all of it trans-shipped by pipeline to Montreal.

Although Puget Sound traffic had been the prime cause of Canada's concern because of the treacherous straits leading to the Sound, Ottawa suggested that those talks be limited with the other discussions.

While the Canadian proposals were largely accepted in Washington, the U.S. suggestion that other boundary waters be included in discussions is likely to be, in the words of one observer, "swallowed with reluctance" by Ottawa.

While the U.S. note accepted the principle of discussions about virtually all the areas of concern advanced by Canada, it showed no initial enthusiasm for Canada's suggestion that any agreements be wrapped up in a "comprehensive" accord similar to the 1972 Great Lakes Water Quality Agreement.

The note said: "The United States would be prepared to consider specific Canadian proposals for alternative supply routes or other measures to meet the retroactive costs.

Municipalities were sued, rather than the provincial government, because under a section of the Municipal Act every municipality with a population over a certain figure is required to make provision for its "poor and destitute," de Villiers said.

He said although the provincial government apparently assumed all responsibility for welfare services in September 1973, that section still remains as an "anomaly" in the legislation so that the hospitals "are continuing to sue the city rather than the government."

The note said: "The United States has agreed to discuss Canadian proposals for alternative supply routes to Cherry Point and Puget Sound refineries. This could mean that oil tankers from Alaska will not be passing Victoria.

A five-page diplomatic note sent to Ottawa from Washington bowed to Canadian demands for consultations on tanker traffic on Puget Sound. In return, the U.S. wants talks to include environmental dangers on the East Coast and Great Lakes.

In effect, the U.S. is suggesting that if oil-bearing tankers from Alaska cause concern to Canada, then the Canadian government should be prepared to discuss U.S. anxiety about oil destined for the Atlantic provinces and Montreal refineries.
